W. M. S. CONVENTION.

The Sixteenth Annual Convention of the Napanee District was held at Wilton, Wednesday, Oct. 5th, 1910. Mrs. Wm. Vallean, District Organizer, presided in her usual able manner.

Despite the threatening weather in the morning which developed into a regular down pour in the afternoon, the beautiful church was filled to overflowing with enthusiastic missionary workers.

Opening exercises were conducted by Wilton Auxiliary. Mrs. Stover reading the Scripture Lesson and prayer by Mrs. (Rev.) Boyce.

The following appointments were made:—Mrs. (Rev.) Boyce, Press Reporter; Courtesy Committee, Mrs. (Dr.) Mabey, Mrs. Parrott, and Mrs. Amey.

Reports of Auxiliaries, Circles and Bands followed, only one failed to report, and all went to show unusually good work has been accomplished during the first half of the year.

Special mention might be made of Bay Circuit Auxiliary securing thirty-six new members and nearly doubling their membership, and Odessa with a membership of forty-one take twenty-seven copies of "The Story of the Years," Vol. 2.

Master Arnold Empey, nine years of age, gave an excellent report of the Switzerville Mission Band, organized in July with a membership of nine, and has been increased to sixteen.

Our sources of income were then taken up. Discussions were led by Mrs. S. P. Bell, Mrs. (Rev.) Demill, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Whyte and Mrs. (Rev.) Copeland. The following points were made re membership fees: Pay early in the year. Pay without waiting to be asked. Life members who wish to pay their dollar may make another a member. We have thirty-three Life Members on our district. Our three circles raised $183.32.

L. L. B's, every Auxiliary can have a Cradle Roll.

Public meetings necessary as a means of education, interest, enthusiasm and finance.

Associate Helpers a most promising field, two ladies on the district securing sixteen in a single canvass and more promised.

Mrs. Dennison, of Selby, gave the relation of the S. S. to the Auxiliary and spoke of the General Conference granting the petition of the W. M. S. that the General Board of Missions in their apportionment "include a sum not exceeding twenty per cent. of the missionary contributions of the Sunday Schools as a grant to the W. M. S."

Consecration Service was led by Mrs. Gibbard. A number spoke of the blessings which had come to them through the Woman's Missionary Society, and all bore testimony to the wonderful power of Him who declared "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end."

Gleanings from the Branch Meeting given by Mrs. P. Detlor, Miss Vanalstine, Miss Burley and Mrs. Stover, delegates, proved a most interesting contribution to the exercises of the afternoon.

The story of the past year in Japan was intelligently dealt with by Miss Fisher, of Napanee Mission Circle.

The claim upon us of "The Stranger Within Our Gates," was ably presented by Mrs. Babcock, of Odessa. Her description of the stranger at "All Peoples' Mission," Winnipeg, was listened to with intense interest.

Echoes from the Board Meeting by Mrs. (Rev.) Copeland. She spoke of her first impressions the mottoes that decorated the church at Ottawa. "The

W. C. T. U. CONVENTION.

The first W. C. T. U. convention of the united counties of Hastings, Lennox and Addington, was held in Newburgh on Oct. 6th. Delegates from Frankford, Belleville (W'y and Y's) and Napanee were present. Newburgh members were out in goodly numbers and all present enjoyed and learned much of the possibilities of the W.C.T. U. work, but regretted the rain which came down steadily from early morning till midnight. But the dampness of the atmosphere did not daunt these White Ribboners.

Morning Session opened in St. Andrews Presbyterian church with Mrs. Hendrick County, President in the chair. Miss Paul, Newburgh, gave Bible reading on Gal. 6. She urged us to restore our brothers who are on slippery places with meekness not unceremoniousness as we each have our temptations.

Owing to Mrs. Denyes' removal Miss Edna Farley, Belleville, was appointed Recording Secretary, and Mrs. George Wartman, Newburgh, was appointed county treasurer. This being the first county convention the superintendents did not all understand their duties but we hope that all will do next year as a few did.

Mr. Dunwoodie, Evangelistic Superintendent, wrote to the Superintendent of each local union and received replies from Madoc' Frankford, Napanee and Newburgh, saying the devotional half hour was observed at each meeting. The Belleville delegate reported no letter received, but both Unions "Y" and "W's" observed it, also held a day of prayer during the spring.

Mrs. Miller, Supt. Juvenile work though prevented from attending sent report. She wrote to five unions, Frankford had boys society of 25 members. She thought it very necessary that our boys and girls be thoroughly grounded in temperance principles.

Miss Soriver, Newburgh, sang sweetly "Calvary". Though reports of all departments were not given each were discussed. Morning Session closed by noon-tide prayer conducted by Mrs. Sexsmith.

After the devotional exercise ably led by Mrs. Wartman, which commenced the afternoon session, the President gave short address, she said women should reign in the home, but also labor in the world and be banded together in thousands for the saving of the boys. She encouraged us to have faith and seize every opportunity to help in raising the prohibition flag of victory.

Mrs. Hyslop, Dominion Organizer, also inspired us to go on and we would win if we each did our best in this fight for the abolition of this liquor curse. She thought the prohibition wave passing over the States was in a greater part due to Scientific Temperance being taught in day schools and Sabbath schools. Mrs. Hyslop materially helped those present by the information she so freely gave.

Miss Nicholson read a paper on Narcotics showing the awful havoc being made on the youth of the land by the use of the cigarette.

It was suggested that the superintendent of each department take liter-

V KOUBER, Napanee.

Robert Parker was sentenced by Chief Justice Mulock to be hanged on Saturday, December 3rd, for the murder of William Masters. After the jury had returned their verdict in the Parker case Mr. Porter applied for a reserved case on the ground that plaster casts of bullets had been put in without permission of the court. This was overruled, as the Judge and Mr. Williams, Clerk of the Court stated that permission had been given. Mr. Porter also asked for a reserved case on the ground that some remarks of the Judge had prejudiced the jury. This also was refused. The applications occupied nearly two hours. The prisoner was then sentenced to be hanged on December 3rd. In passing sentence his Lordship said Parker had been fairly tried and ably defended. The prisoner was advised to make the best use of the time that remained to him on earth.

was immediately dealt with by Miss Fisher, of Napanee Mission Circle. The claim upon us of "The Stranger Within Our Gates," was ably presented by Mrs. Babcock, of Odessa. Her description of the stranger at "All Peoples' Mission," Winnipeg, was listened to with intense interest.

Echoes from the Board Meeting by Mrs. (Rev.) Copeland. She spoke of her first impressions the mottoes that decorated the church at Ottawa, "The World for Jesus in this Generation." "We can do it if we will," and "God Wills It." The great devotion of our officers of the board to the work of the W. M. S. The great responsibility of the missionaries and the greater responsibilities of the home workers. The deep spirituality which characterized the meetings, etc., were much appreciated.

During the sessions solos were given by Miss Denison and Miss Roberta Bell, Napanee Mission Circle, and Miss Dora Amey, Switzerland Mission Circle; also recitation by Miss Parrott, S. M. S.; Duet, Mrs. W. Purdy and Mrs. G. Fralick; Trio, Mrs. W. Fretts, Mrs. T. Asselstine and Mrs. Parks; Quartette, Morven L. L. B., Miss Lauretta Smith, Pansy Jackson, Muriel Joyce and Bernice Kayler, to the delight of all.

The collections for the day were $7.35, lunch fees $17.70.

The report of the Courtesy Committee was given as follows by Mrs. (Dr.) Mabey:

It affords me very much pleasure on behalf of this convention to move a hearty vote of thanks to the President and members of the Auxiliary and the other Wilton ladies who have given us such a heart welcome and provided such a nice dinner. Also we would not forget the gentlemen who have given their assistance with the horses, and in many other ways helped in entertaining us so well. But then it is a well known fact that the Wilton people are noted for their hospitality. Also we would thank them for the blackboard, and Miss Muriel Babcock, for her work at the board, which was much appreciated.

We would like to thank our Organizer for the splendid programme provided, which must have caused her much thought and careful preparation, however she must, I am sure, feel doubly repaid for her labors, for I think we are all going home feeling glad to be here and much benefited.

We wish to thank all who have taken part in the programme. Their thoughts were fine and well put.

Mrs. Copeland's thoughts from the Board were much enjoyed, being from one present at that meeting.

The music and especially the children, in fact all deserve special mention.

We thank Mrs. Edward Kayler for the able manner in which she took the secretary's place.

Last but not least we thank the Napanee Express for the missionary spirit shown for inserting two notices of this Convention without charge.

In behalf of Hawley Auxiliary Mrs. P. Dettler extended a hearty invitation to hold our convention there next year.

Mrs. Wm. Valteau was re-nominated District Organizer.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Claiming he wrote the hymn, "Just For To-day," one of the principal ones in the Anglican hymnal, William Huckle, a convict, writers from Kingston penitentiary to the archbishop of Ottawa. He goes fully into the facts and says: "My wife has copies of the original which can be obtained from her, her address being 1,200 Goodman street, North Rochester, N. Y." The hymn was generally supposed to have been written by Rev. Dr. Willberforce, long since dead, though deceased never went so far as to say so. Huckle's claim will be thoroughly investigated.

ance being taught in day schools and Sabbath schools. Mrs. Hyslop materially helped those present by the information she so freely gave.

Miss Nicholson read a paper on Narcotics showing the awful havoc being made on the youth of the land, by the use of the cigarette.

It was suggested that the superintendent of each department take literature of that department to the next county convention to sell to the delegates for use in the local unions.

Mrs. Littlewood, Newburgh, sang "The Choir Celestial" in a pleasing manner.

Much useful information was given on Local Option and the laws governing it.

The Revolution and Plan of Work committees brought in following report:

"Resolved that the W. C. T. U. bring Local Option before the pastors, church leaders, Christian and Temperance Societies in their town with a view of co-operation in a campaign."

"Also that the W. C. T. U. see that all lady voters get to the poll."

Resolved that so far as possible the W. C. T. U. co-operate with the temperance men in securing a temperance council."

"Recommended that a greater effort be made to suppress cigarette smoking by calling the attention of parents to its evils and enforcing the law."

"Recommended that every W.C.T.U. have a young people's society either a "Y" or Loyal Legion and both where practicable. Where not practicable to organize that literature be procured and the work done as far as possible through the Sunday schools."

"Recommended that White Cross meetings be conducted by Mr. Beal, also that parlor meetings for Mothers be held where there are no mother's meetings for the poor, where subjects of temperance and social purity can be discussed."

"In the Evangelistic department was recommended that the half hour of prayer and bible study be observed in every Union. That the superintendent of this department take charge of the devotional exercises at Mother's Meetings."

It is recommended that prayer meeting be held whenever possible by the Union.

and 2 unions instigated Local Option campaigns.

The evening session opened to the continued accompaniment of the rain which caused many to lose the opportunity of hearing Mrs. Hyslop's concise and instructive account of the World's W. C. T. U. convention held in Glasgow when 100 White Ribboners occupied as many pulpits in that city in old conservative Scotland, when 440 delegates each one representing one thousand women from 44 different countries were gathered. In one session 80 women made speeches in 85 minutes. Some only commenced in the minute allotted to each, but many made good points.

The very enthusiasm of these representatives gathered from all quarters of the Globe for the overthrow of this world wide curse made her proud to be a White Ribboner and also to believe the time is coming when we will have "total abstinence for the individual and prohibition for the whole."

Politicians and others are realizing the need for the work of this world wide organization which take their stand for the overthrow of the Liquor traffic. She thought the Eucharistic Congress had set Protestants thinking all over the Dominion. She drew a vivid picture of the great possibilities of our Dominion and thought everything possible should be done to win and protect the children and this is the W. C. T. U. work.

How our hearts should go out in sympathy and anxiety to help those whose lives are being ruined by the six thousand licensed places in Canada.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NAPANEE EXPRESS.

MR. EDITOR:

Many staunch Methodists think it most deplorable, that since the late General Conference, Ministers from the sacred desk will by sophistry and special pleading, sanction and defend the action of that body and the church on the "foot-note," or the question of amusements, striving to make their hearers believe that the Church is still upholding its old principles and practices.

Are we to accept false logic or true? This question is an old Conference problem, and was before the General Conference not on account of its utility, or any other good reason, but because in our large Methodist centres, viz: the Towns and Cities, many of the young people declare that if the Methodist Church will not abolish those rules, they will join other Churches where there are not such restrictions, and where they can have the liberty or license to do as they choose, so for the sake of numbers, influence and money the Church lowers the very standard that has helped materially to make her the great Spiritual power she has been in the past.

Is it not time that every true Methodist should raise a solemn protest against such open and undisguised follies?

The laity certainly expect from their teachers of morality and religion not only good logic, but candour, honest and truth.

"Creed and teacher must be tested
As by fires of fiercest light;
For the question of the age is,
"Is it true, and is it right?"

METHODIST.

RAILWAY NEWS.

The Bay of Quinte Railway.

Following the purchase of the Central Ontario Ry., the Marmora Ry. and Mining Co.'s line, and the Ironclad Bancroft and Ottawa Ry., the Mackenzie, Mann & Co., interests have secured the Bay of Quinte Ry. which has a total of 80.37 miles of line, distributed as follows:—Deseronto to Bannockburn, Ont., 75.00 miles; Deseronto westerly, 2.00 miles; and Yarker to Sydenham, 11.37 miles. These lines were built under different charters, and finally amalgamated under the title of the Bay of Quinte Ry. The company also operates over 19 miles of the G. T. R. In the official report the mileage is divided as follows:—main line, 78 miles; branches and spurs, 11.37 miles; operated under trackage rights, 19 miles; yard tracks and sidings, 15.30 miles. There are on the line 73 unprotected level crossings; 12 iron bridges of an aggregate length of 1,010 ft., the maximum length being 200 ft., and the minimum length 24 ft.; and one wooden bridge 60 ft. long. Its rolling stock, June 30, 1909, the latest reports available, consisted of seven locomotives; 8 first class passenger cars; three baggage, express and postal cars; 18 box cars, 120 flat cars, 20 gravel cars, two cabooses and three other road cars. There was outstanding on June 30, 1909, $1,395,000 of common stock, and $880,000 of bonds. The subsidies paid on account of the building of the lines were: From the Dominion Government, $320,455.25; from the Ontario Government, $84,000, and from municipalities, $197,900.43.

LENNOX AND ADDINGTON HISTORICAL SOCIETY NOTES.

The first meeting for the season will be held on Friday evening October 21st, at 8 o'clock, in Historical Hall, Library Building. Mr. James L. Hughes, of the City of Toronto, will deliver a lecture, taking as a subject "The Old Training and the New." Mr. Hughes is the Chief Inspector of the Toronto City Schools, and is acknowledged to be one of Canada's first orators. This lecture is sure to be an intellectual treat,—everyone welcome. Entrance free.

There have been many additions to the collection of the Society since the annual meeting in May. The Societies of the province have sent their annual reports as issued and several of them have presented copies of their publications. A great many copies of early Canadian newspapers have also been added.

One of the most valuable presents received by the society since its organization is a set of the Napanee "Standard." Most of our citizens will remember the Standard. The historical material contained in the issues of this paper is most interesting. We are indebted to Mr. T. S. Henry for this splendid donation.

To Mr. Norman B. Hamm, of Bath, we are indebted for a valuable package of old papers, included in which is a complete history of the effort to establish The Free Holders Bank at Bath in the thirties.

The Royal Colonial Institute, of London, has entered our Society on its exchange list, and we now receive regularly their monthly publication the "United Empire."

An interesting pamphlet from Mr. James White of the commission of conservation, Ottawa, entitled "Place Names in the Thousand Islands, St. Lawrence River," was received this week. This little booklet gives a list of the names of the islands on the Canadian side with a short history of the origin of each name.

Mr. Stevenson, the Supreme Chief Ranger of the Independent Order of Foresters, Toronto, has presented to the Society from the Foresters a fine large table. This table is one which was in the hall at Foresters' Island, and is just what the Society required for use as a receiving table.

A suitable card will be put on it acknowledging the origin of the gift. The demand for the second volume of our Papers and Records continues. Copies have been ordered by old residents of the County from every part of the west, including British Columbia and California. Volume one is also in demand. These two little books contain very interesting local history and make excellent gift books for friends who have left this district. The price of each is 25c or by mail 30c.

For those who have attended the Historical Lectures a special invitation is extended for the lecture to be given October 21st. The entrance is free and every one will be welcomed.

Canadian Northern Ontario Railway.

Application has been made to the Board of Railway Commissioners for the approval of the location plans for the first five miles of a line from near Hurdman's bridge skirting south of the Rideau River. This is the eastern end of the line now under construction from Toronto.

The work on this line between Toronto and Trenton is everywhere well advanced, and the sub-contractors on grading are moving on beyond Trenton, from which grading is being gone on with to Belleville. The route as approved through Sidney Township, is north of the highway from Trenton, to a point east of Belleville cemetery, thence south of the highway to the city. H. K. Wickstead, Chief Locating Engineer, recently arrived in Belleville, for the purpose of going over the route located for the line easterly from that city, so as to connect it up at Deseronto, with the recently acquired Bay of Quinte Ry. This will necessitate a route following the bay shore, crossing the branch lines to the cement works on a viaduct, and keeping along the lake front to Deseronto. The Bay of Quinte Ry. will be utilized to Sydenham, from which place it is about 92 miles to Ottawa.

The Toronto-Trenton section of the line is expected to be opened for traffic about the end of the year, and it is hoped to have work on the Trenton-Deseronto section sufficiently far advanced, as to have it ready for traffic during the summer of 1911, and the rest of the line into Ottawa ready by the end of that year.—The Ry. and Marine World October 10th.

GREAT FALLS OF NIAGARA

SOME EARLY DATA OF THE WONDERFUL CATARACT.

Records of the First White Men Who Saw It—Forms of Indian Name.

Ni-a-ga-ra, with the accent on the third syllable, is supposed to be the poetic and euphonic pronunciation of the name of the famous falls.

The origin of the name and the discoverers of the great river and majestic falls are the features of this article. The interest is augmented through the Indian nomenclature attached to it. The superstitions and nature worshipping of man had many names for this river. There is a certain similarity among those used, showing conclusively that the early chroniclers understood the guttural utterances of the various tribes.

EARLY INDIAN TRIBES.

Originally the region was occupied by a large and powerful tribe of Indians of which little is known, not even their name. In the early seventeenth century the tribe located here was called "The Neutrals," as between the Hurons and Iroquois, but about the middle of that century they were exterminated by the Iroquois, after the defeat of the Hurons.

Only one word of their language remains. It is "Onghara," the name of the falls and river.

The French explorer and priest, Lalemont, in 1641, came from the late Marie mission in the Huron's country across the peninsula of south-western Ontario into the country of the "Neutral Nation." Thence, he says, he was four days going to the entrance of the "so celebrated" river of that nation which flowed into the Ontario or Lake St. Luays. He describes the river as that through which the Great Lake of the Hurons, a fresh water sea, empties, flowing first into the Lake of Erie or of the nation of the Cat, and at the end of the lake entering the territory of the "Neutral Nation."

The name given this river by the Indians, according to Father Lalemont, was Onquaahra.

The Seneca Indians called the river and falls Nya-geah, while the Iroquois granted it out Onyakara and also Oienkwara. On Sanson's map in 1636 the name is given as Niagara. In another place it appears as Unghara.

Hennepin gives the first spelling of the name Niagara, which appears on his map in 1653. The form Oneigra appeared in a document in 1686. Oronelli also used the word Niagara on his map in 1688.

The Senecas deeded to the English a tract of land here in 1701, and in the document appeared the expression, "including likewise the great falls of Okinagara."

In the treaty of 1726 Oniagara is used. Later the Indians used Niagara, and authorities differ as to the pronunciation. Some claim the Indians gave it as Nee-aug-a-ra with the accent on the second syllable, others that it is Nee-a-ga-ra, with the accent on the third syllable. The reader can make his choice.

Who the first discoverer of the falls was is not positively friend in Philadelphia, which was dated from Albany, Sept. 2, 1750 and is reproduced in Prof. Spencer's "The Falls of Niagara."

OTHER GREAT FALLS.

There are other great falls in the world, and the latest to be discovered are the Chamberlain Falls, which are located on the Ireng River in British Guinea.

The following table compares the size of the new falls and the Kaletur falls, also in New Guinea. None of them, however, have the volumes of water which pours over Niagara's cataracts:

	Height.	Width.
Niagara, American.	167 ft.	1,060 ft.
Niagara, Canadian.	158 ft.	3,010 ft.
Victoria	400 ft.	5,580 ft.
Kaletur	741 ft.	370 ft.
Chamberlain	300 ft.	200 ft.

KEEPING HOUSE IN PERSIA.

How Flour and Sugar are Obtained—Native Cookery.

Housekeeping in Persia is a more difficult undertaking than in western countries. The chief reasons for this are the lack of conveniences, and the fact that many things which in other countries can be bought ready for use must be prepared by the Persian housekeeper, says a writer in the Los Angeles Times.

Do you want flour? You must buy your wheat, clean and sift it and send it to the miller, who gives perhaps a day's journey from you. You must send with the wheat the most trusty servant you have, who will watch the miller day and night to see that he does not take too much toll. You ought of course to send a second servant to watch the first, but if you began that there would be no end to the number you would have to send.

Do you want sugar? Loaf sugar, granulated sugar, powdered sugar—you cannot buy them. What you can buy is a cone of sugar, about ten inches in diameter and eighteen inches in height, which comes from Russia or France. If you want lumps of sugar for your coffee and tea this cone of sugar must be placed on the solid floor and by means of a strong knife and a hammer broken into pieces. If you want fine sugar these pieces must be then ground with a mortar and pestle. If you wish powdered sugar the fine sugar must be sifted several times. Even in the kitchen of a European, where a table will be found, the cutting and pounding of the sugar must be done on the solid earthen floor.

The Persian "range" is merely a row of hollow boxes made of sun dried bricks in which is built a charcoal fire. Over these boxes are placed strips of iron on which the kettle rests. Native cookery does not include many things that are baked, but if you, an eccentric foreigner, demand a cake or pie your ingenious cook will be equal to the occasion. He will prepare beds of glowing coals in two of the boxes. Over one of these he will place the articles to be baked. This he will cover with a copper pan and on top of the pan he will place hot coals. The object of the coals in the second box is that the cook may be able to renew the fire in the first box without putting on fresh coal, which might smoke.

Most Persian implements are very heavy and awkward to handle. For example, cooking utensils are of copper and bowls for washing clothes are of earthenware. The

ROMANTIC MINING TALES

MINES OF PURE GOLD YET BEING SOUGHT.

The Latest Eldorado Brings to Mind Some Old-Time Lucky Strikes.

Gold fever—the desire to dig pure virgin metal from the very bowels of the earth—is a disease peculiar to the boldest and most enterprising of mankind.

From time immemorial man has dreamed of mines of pure gold, mountains of ore, where the precious metal exceeds in proportions the residue of dross. It is an interesting commentary on this dream that the largest single piece of gold ever discovered weighed but 2,516 ounces, and was worth only $46,000, while the bulk of the world's annual gold yield is obtained from ore in which the yellow metal is present in such infinitesimal quantities that it is impossible to detect it with the naked eye.

UNROMANTIC FINDS IN B. C.

And now a new Eldorado has been discovered, the most reasonable accounts of which point to the deposit being of a very unpicturesque nature. A calm summary of the new field indicates a possibly large deposit of mineralized matter, containing gold in such quantities as to warrant the instalment of a huge plant of very complicated and expensive machinery. The "forty-niners" of California and the Australians of the early fifties would have passed by such a deposit in hopeless ignorance of its real value. To-day it is a mineral discovery of immense importance.

The romance of gold seeking is rapidly fading with the extinction of individual finding. The days when a man could go into the unknown and of himself take from the earth wealth in its most accessible form are nearly numbered. The gold-seeker of to-day is a geologist with an expensive mineralogical training. The gold getter is a compound of surveyor, electrical engineer, assayer, and experimental chemist.

LUCKY "SAILOR BILL."

Alas! for the good old days, when a new "rush" broke out every six months, the days when diggers, lucky and unlucky, enlivened the canvas town of Ballarat in '52. Of all the diggers Sailor Bill was the best. Bill who deserted his ship, and who, within twenty-four hours of pegging his claim had bottomed and was washing out handfuls of nuggets as big as walnuts. Two days later he passed on his bonanza to a couple of unlucky miners, who were enviously regarding his operations, and went off to enjoy himself. Wasteful Sailor Bill! He drilled holes in the biggest nuggets with a cold chisel and strung them on a piece of twine to hang round the neck of Patty, the pretty barmaid of the Charley Napier.

When Sailor Bill had to go a-digging once more nuggets sprouted like mushrooms under the point of his pick. It was he who instituted the cheerful custom of eating bank-note sandwiches as hors d'oeuvres, and of shoeing his horse with gold. He turned from one claim to another, only to find each one richer than the last. And when they dug the grave to bury him they bottom-the pronunciation. Some claim the Indians gave it as Nee-aug-a-ra with the accent on the second syllable; others that it is Nee-a-ga-ra, with the accent on the third syllable. The reader can make his choice.

Who the first discoverer of the river and falls was is not positively known. Prof. Spencer, in his "The Falls of Niagara" states that Cartier was the first European to discover the beginning of the route to Niagara. Champlain was the first to give to the world the announcement of the existence of the celebrated falls in his "Des Sauvages," 1604—"Sault d'eau au bout du Sault Saint Louis fort haut, ou plusieurs sortes de poissons descendent s'estourdissent." Translated: "A very high fall of water, at the end of the rapids of St. Louis, where many kind of fish in descending are stunned." St. Louis was the name then given the present Lake Ontario.

FIRST TO SEE THEM.

Traders and missionaries were in this region as early as 1626, and Prof. Spencer thinks Brule was here in 1611. In 1648 Father Ragueneau, a missionary, wrote: "Almost due south from the country of the Neutral Nation we find a great lake, 200 leagues in circumference called Erie. It is formed by the discharge of the fresh water sea (Lake Huron), and throws itself over a waterfall of great height into a third lake, named Ontario."

Prof. Spencer says that while these accounts more fully describe Lake Erie and correctly locate the Niagara River, they add no information as to the character of the falls, beyond that narrated by the Indians to Champlain.

Who was the first European to see the falls will never be known as he was probably among the Coureurs de bois, or perhaps some early French missionary who did not leave a written record. The first was, therefore, Lallement, followed by Ragueneau, who gave an account of the river and falls, styling them as "so celebrated" that others must have seen and described them previously.

JESUIT MISSIONARIES.

La Salle and Hennepin visited the falls in 1678, and chronicled the event. There were estimated breadths and heights of the falls prior to these visits, but they were made from the Indians' reports. The first careful observer who left any date was Charlevoix. In 1721 he estimated the crest line at 400 paces. He says that exactly in the middle the cataract was divided by a very narrow island (Goat Island), half a mile long, but that the river below the falls soon reunited. As this was nearly, if not 200 years ago, there has been ample time for many changes in the contour and formation of Goat Island. Charlevoix tried to measure the height of the falls, and gives it approximately at 150 feet. He said that one falls had several points which jutted out, and that the other appeared very smooth. At that time the cross fall of Hennepin had disappeared. The narrowness of the end of Goat Island was confirmed by Kahn in 1750 and by Picot's picture in 1768.

Kahn, who was a Swede who travelled in America, wrote the first authentic English description of Niagara Falls in a letter to a coal in the second box is that the cook may be able to renew the fire in the first box without putting on fresh coal, which might smoke.

Most Persian implements are very heavy and awkward to handle. For example, cooking utensils are of copper and bowls for washing clothes are of earthenware. The bowls are small and shallow. The washerwoman has no bench on which to place the bowl and no board on which to rub the clothes. Squatted on her heels, with the bowl on the floor, she wears out her hands and the clothes too at a marvellous rate. It looks rather primitive to see a woman sitting beside a watercourse pounding clothes with a stone, but I am not sure that this method, which is universally employed by the poorer people, is not to be preferred to the other.

DOLL'S HOUSE 220 YEARS OLD.

Nostell Priory in Yorkshire Contains Famous Toy.

There are at least two famous dolls' houses in England; one is at Nostell Priory, the Yorkshire home of Lord and Lady Oswald. This dolls' house dates from 1690, and it contains some exquisite Chippendale furniture made in miniature. The dolls which inhabit it are dressed in gorgeous old brocades, and the dinner service off which they eat is of silver. The other dolls' house is in a house near Petersfield, and if not quite so valuable, is nevertheless very beautiful, and a much cherished possession. A curious fact in connection with the lovely Chippendale furniture, some of the finest specimens known at Nostell Priory, is that the receipted bills for it are also preserved there, conclusively proving that it is genuine.

KING WHO WASHED DISHES.

Haakon of Norway Served Severe Marine Apprenticeship.

A sailor-king in every sense of the term is King Haakon of Norway, who recently celebrated his thirty-eighth birthday, for he served a severe marine apprenticeship in his youth. In the Danish navy cadets during the first period of their service have the same work, rations and quarters as ordinary seamen. So the King, during his first nine months on the Danish training ship Dronning Louise, had to take his turn in waiting on his messmates and in washing up the dishes after meals. This rough training has proved a valuable asset in his government of a democratic race, and King Haakon has been popular with his people from the first days of his reign.

like mushrooms under the point of his pick. It was he who instituted the cheerful custom of eating bank-note sandwiches as hors d'oeuvres, and of shoeing his horse with gold. He turned from one claim to another, only to find each one richer than the last. And when they dug the grave to bury him they bottomed at 12 feet on wash dirt that went four ounces to the dish.

When the man who has listened to such tales from his earliest childhood hears of mountains of gold he develops gold fever at once. He must be up and away, stripping the earth from its buried treasure. Miles of reef; more gold than quartz! It sounds so easily possible.

Men have found Eldorados in recent years. Not twenty years ago Arthur Bayley and his mate Ford picked up 2,600 ounces of virgin gold on the surface sand of Coolgardie between the dawn and dusk of one day. $50,000 in one day for two men, and no digging! Later they found a reef, and took out quartz that was worth $100,000 a ton. Tried to break it with a hammer, and long after the stone had cracked the mineral held together by the stout wires of ductile gold that ran through it. They founded a city where 25,000 people now dwell, and pointed the way to $150,000,000 worth of golden ore. Both men are dead, and neither left a son behind him.

WORK NOT DONE IN VAIN.

Gold fever generally kills the patient, after eating up the whole of his substance. But it is a healthy complaint for the world at large. The men who set out in pursuit of the gold at the foot of the rainbow may find their inspiration a grand mistake. The imagined deposits of solid gold have never yet been found. But the vision of them helps to reclaim from the unknown great tracts of the fairest country this earth holds.

THE UNTUTORED MIND.

Savage Soon Learns to Imitate Ways of Civilized Brother.

That civilization does not always come as a blessing to the savage is illustrated by the British Colonial Office report on Somaliland. The Somalis, it is stated, are degenerating in consequence of the imitation of habits and fashions learned from the white man.

For instance, the umbrella, an anomaly alongside a camel caravan, is coming into general use, although the Somali traveler, to avoid public ridicule, unfurls it only after leaving the precincts of the town. Blankets are now a necessity, whereas formerly the hard ground, with the sleeper's robe wrapped around his body, were considered adequate comfort and protection against any weather. To ignite a fire the friction of two sticks formerly sufficed, but in these days the nomad requires kerosene oil and matches for the purpose.

The London Daily Mail of recent date contains a letter written by a young Englishman in the United States to his mother in England. The English lad's modest story of his own heroism is in part as follows:—

Dear Mother: Do you remember me telling you that the first day I arrived at the Western Motor Company a fellow got terribly burned by a gasoline explosion? All the fellows were awfully sorry for him, because he was such a good fellow. After being in the hospital six weeks the doctor said he could not make progress until someone would volunteer to have some skin taken off and grafted on to the injured man.

TWO ONLY SINCERE.

You would hardly believe that not a soul would have it done; all their sympathy ended in talking. He is a married man with seven little children.

Well, Cramp and I said we didn't mind having a bit of skin taken off, so we told the doctors. He said one patient was all he required, so we tossed up, and I lost. When I said I would have done it I didn't know what I was letting myself in for. I thought they would just take the skin off and bandage me up and let me out, but no.

HOURS OF PAIN.

They put me on one operating table and the other chap (Mr. Good, the injured man), on another by the side of me, and then the fun started. I was on that operating table for four and a half hours, with a doctor cutting strips of skin off me with a razor.

The way they graft skin is like this. One doctor cut strips off my thigh with a razor and passed it on to the other, and he stuck it on Good's arm while it was still warm. I can tell you I was jolly glad when it was over, for four and a half hours lying down with a doctor cutting little bits off the top, goes a long way.

One doctor said, "What sized pieces do you want now?" and the other replied, "Oh, a bit six inches long." Then he cuts off the desired amount just like two ounces of beef and a halfpenny batch. But, all joking on one side, it hurt most horribly.

ENGLISH PLUCK.

When at last it was all over the two doctors (awfully nice chaps), shook hands with me and said I was the pluckiest fellow they had ever met and kept up my reputation of being an Englishman.

Then, when I got to my room every nurse in the hospital congratulated me on my pluck. I felt quite a bit of a hero. The only part I couldn't stick was when Good's wife came in to thank me and started to cry, and then I nearly did the same.

MOTOR-DRIVEN VDSSELS

ARE THINGS OF THE FUTURE, BUT SURELY COMING.

Motive Power Can be Controlled From Deck—Saving of Weight and Space.

The report than an order for a motor-driven battleship is shortly to be given to Portsmouth Dockyard is certainly premature, though if the skill of marine engineers prove equal to the task, it is only an intelligent anticipation of the future, says the naval correspondent of The London Daily Graphic.

The advantages to be gained by the introduction of the internal combustion engine into large ships of war are so great that it may be considered a certainty that designers will never rest until the difficulties are overcome. The saving in weight and space and the greater arc of training obtainable for the guns, are obvious advantages, as is also the elimination of the necessity to carry a large stoker complement, and the conversion of almost every man on board into an actual combatant.

But there will be further advantages yet. The motive power will once more, as in the days of sails, be controlled directly from the deck. The whole engineer question will vanish for there will be no need for

AN ENGINE-ROOM WATCH.

Moreover, the ship will be protected by a continuous armoured deck, and the anticipated danger from explosives dropped from dirigibles or aeroplanes down the funnels will vanish before it has fairly come into existence.

Furthermore, as the first sign of a fleet at sea is always the smoke, even when best Welsh is burned, the fleet which first possesses a number of motor-driven ships will derive considerable benefit from invisibility.

But we are some way from this desirable consummation as yet. Prudence demands that the Admiralty should not risk so much as the failure of a two-million-pound battleship until the system has been thoroughly tried in vessels of lighter weight and less importance. This may be said with confidence, though our Admiralty and their technical advisers have shown themselves not to be wanting in daring.

THE TURBINE.

It was at the Diamond Jubilee Review in 1897 that the Turbine first astonished the spectators at Spithead with her performances. By 1901 the new system of propulsion had been introduced into the Navy in the destroyers Viper and Cobra, which were both, unfortunately, lost in the same year. The Turbine was next installed in the small cruisers of the "Gem" class (Amethyst, etc.), and then, in 1905, the Admiralty made a huge step forward by installing them in the Dreadnought and the Invincible cruisers.

But turbines had by then had a much more exhaustive trial as ship propellants than has any form of internal combustion engine at present. Not only had they been tried with success in destroyers and small outed in a store; he has started out in life to hoe his own row, and to-day he got a letter from another uncle who is interested in him, as we all are, giving him some sound advice in a little set of rules intended to help him get on, and I don't know as I could have done any better myself.

"I was going to draw up something for him, but I tell him he couldn't do better than to stick to these. See what you think of them."

"1. Work hard.

"It would be hard to improve on that, wouldn't it? There is at least a fair measure of sure success in that one rule alone. With no other guide than that a man would be sure to get somewhere."

"2. Invent new ideas, and when you have an idea don't say to the boss, 'Don't you think,' but say, 'I think' or 'It seems to me,' and then ask him. If you go at him first with a question he will think you are in doubt about it yourself and then he'll be inclined to doubt it. Don't be afraid. You want to be courageous and self-reliant without being fresh or buttinsky."

"I don't know about the wisdom of writing slang to Henry, but the rule itself is sound clean through."

"3. Don't be afraid of having an idea turned down. Invent another and spring that."

"Quite correct, rule three. A man never gets anywhere if he lets himself be set back by the first zephyr."

"4. Always be orderly and systematic. Learn all the details you can lay your hands on, they'll all prove useful. Don't waste people's time foolishly, but when there are things you really want to know about don't be afraid to ask wise questions."

"Sound is rule four; wise counsel."

"Figure the whole thing as if it was your own business and try to do your work as if the success of the firm depended on you."

"A stem winder, that last rule. I tell Henry, forgetting for the moment my own objection to slang; but really in that last rule is contained all the rest and all that anybody really needs to know to command success. The man of ability who can really forget himself and devote himself solely to the interests of the concern, why, he has no need to bother himself about the future."

"I tell Henry those rules are all good and he ought to read them over at least once a week until he gets them firmly fixed in his mind; and that last rule, rule five, if I were he I'd get the stenographer in the office to pound out on the typewriter on a piece of paper and then I'd paste it in my hat."

FIRST SEWING MACHINE.

The first sewing machine for sewing was probably the bone needle, and in the 16th century, in Great Britain, came the steel one, and it was not until the 18th century that mechanical means were in this industry thought of as a method of lightening labor; then the idea occurred to Thomas Saint, a London cabinetmaker, and he constructed a chain-stitch machine working with a single thread.

THE WIND AND OUR NERVES.

Effects Upon Us of Winds From East, West and Northwest.

The east winds hug the earth more closely and gather moisture, dust and bacteria. They are cold and humid, altogether forming an enervating influence on human and animal life and rendering it susceptible to the disease germs which the winds carry and disseminate.

The cool, pure northwest winds come from a region of dry, highly electrified air where ozone exists in comparatively large quantities. They are invigorating. The framework of nerves in the human being is like a delicate electrical apparatus, the nerves being the wires and the brain and ganglia receiving and distributing centres.

Every one knows that a telephone works better on a clear, dry day than on a wet, muggy one. The moist atmosphere lessens vitality. The nerve wires grow flaccid and heavy. The messages become confused. Hence low spirits, melancholia, distorted mental outlook, faulty assimilation, and disease.

The opposite effects flow from the northwest winds. The west and northwest winds keep the mucous membranes of the body in good working order. The coating of moisture which is always present with the east wind disappears. Absence of any wind if long continued has a bad effect on the human body and mind.

A prolonged calm means lack of ventilation on a great scale. The winds serve to mix in normal proportions the gases which compose the atmosphere, and in this way they are conducive to health up to a certain point. Beyond about twenty miles an hour their influence begins to be unfavorable.

BLOTTING PAPER.

Workman Forgot to Put Sizing in Ordinary Paper.

Blotting paper was discovered purely by accident. Some ordinary paper was being made one day at a mill in Berkshire, England, when a careless workman forgot to put in the sizing material. The whole of the paper made was regarded as being useless. The proprietor of the mill desired to write a note, shortly afterwards, and he took a piece of waste paper, thinking it was good enough for the purpose. To his intense annoyance the ink spread all over the paper. Suddenly there flashed over his mind the thought that this paper would do instead of sand for drying ink, and he at once advertised his waste-paper as "blotting." There was such a big demand that the mill ceased to make ordinary paper and was soon occupied in making blotting only, the use of which

The experiments conducted by the Marquess of Graham and the Clyde Division of the Naval Volunteer Reserve with the old gunboat Rattler have certainly given rise to hopes that the new system is practicable. With an installation of producer gas she made her eight to ten knots, and proved reliable; but the strongest evidence of the feasibility of the new system is the order given by the Hamburg-America Line to Messrs. Blohm & Voss of Hamburg, for a liner of 9,000 tons, to be driven by Diesel motors at a speed of 12 1/2 knots.

HALF INSANE CASES CURABLE

French Surgeon Invents New Trep-hine to Open Skull's.

Curing insanity and feeble-mindedness by opening the skull and doctoring the brain has undreamed of possibilities, in the opinion of Prof. Cassius C. Rogers of the Chicago College of Medicine and Surgery after a summer's study in the Paris hospitals. He thinks that the cases of half of the inmates of insane asylums are curable.

"Brain surgery until recently had developed little," said he, "but France has shown wonderful possibilities in this direction. Dr. Thierry de Mavel's new trephine is the only instrument known that stops as soon as the skull is penetrated and it comes in contact with the soft structures underneath. This inconceivably lessens the danger in operations on the head. When it is realized how large a number of patients in institutions for the insane could be cured by opening the skull and removing the pressure or cause of irritation the value of the invention becomes apparent."

DECREASE IN IRISH CRIME.

In 1909 Offences Were 3.8 Per Cent. Less Than in 1908.

Statistics relating to crime in Ireland show that during last year the indictable offences reported to the police numbered 9,873 for the whole of Ireland, showing a decrease of 3.8 per cent., as compared with 1908, but an increase of 4.8 per cent. compared with 1907.

The number of persons proceeded against for non-indictable offences was 1,479 more than in 1908, and 13,553 above the average for the ten years 1898-08. In this connection it is pointed out that there is no doubt the remarkable increase in the number of prosecutions against owners and drivers of carts under the Highways Acts is due to the operations of the "Light on Vehicles Act (1907). The number of cases of drunkenness in 1909 was less than in 1908 by 5,519. During 1909 there were 68,748 prosecutions for drunkenness. The average number for the previous ten years was 65,108.

DEATH-HEAD GIRL.

Upper Part of Body Restored by Remarkable Operation.

Six months ago Professor Hollander, M. D., of Berlin, Germany, introduced to a circle of medical men a girl with a death-head—the most awful example of that form of degeneration ever seen in this century. There was absolutely no flesh or fat on the bones of the face or the upper part of the body, not a half ounce, it was attested. The unhappy girl looked like a manikin used in the medical college to teach the play of the muscles—but only down to her hips. From the hips to the toes she was normally formed.

The death-head girl, it was shown was a chorus lady and originally she had been engaged for her beauty of face and figure. One day her father was killed in a street accident and the girl suffered a fearful shock when the bleeding body was brought to the house. From that moment on her flesh began to waste until finally it was all gone above the hips. Of course, she lost her job. The process of wasting was complete in six years.

Further investigation showed that the girl was not ill during any period of that time. There was no such or similar illness in the family and several sisters were exceedingly well developed girls.

The physicians decided that in this case, the introduction of paraffine under her skin would do no good, though such is known to produce fine necks and bosoms sometimes. The professor then decided to use the fat the girl still retained in her lower body to build up her upper parts. There was sufficient animal fat below the hips for the purpose. This was extracted, mixed with butter and olive oil and injected where it would do the most good. The cure lasted six months.

"The death-head girl," when she was reintroduced to the medical men that had seen her before, was a death-head girl no longer. While not plump by any means, she is now so presentable that she was again engaged as a chorus girl. But she wouldn't do exactly for low neck costumes.

MILL GIRLS TAKE OPIUM.

After a thorough investigation the Pall Mall Gazette has come to the conclusion that the opium habit is shockingly prevalent among the working classes of London. One phase of the evil is the impregnating of cigarettes with opium, which, the Gazette asserts, "is rampant, especially among the mill girls of Lancashire, who find it irresistible as a solace and means of obtaining temporary relief from the weariness and pain attendant on a life of toil."

It's mighty hard being patient with the man who prates of his patience.

The high price of meat in the United Kingdom has given impetus to a movement to substitute fish for meat, and there has been formed an organization to bring cheap fish to all the large cities of the country. In addition to its cheapness, fish food, it is held, is more healthy than meat, and that it acts as a protection against tuberculosis. It was shown that a family of four could live well on fish costing not over one shilling and one pence a week, and the government is contracting for fish for the navy at $1.2d. per pound.

Canada's lakes and rivers are full of fish, but by the time they reach the consumer the railroads and the middlemen have so added to the cost that most people prefer to buy meat. The satisfying and nutritious properties of fish food are well known and generally recognized. That is needed to popularize a fish dietary is some organization not actuated entirely by greed to make it cheaper to adopt than one of meat.

Chavez, the Peruvian aviator, failed to win the $20,000 prize, but he had the will to do, the soul to dare. And he actually did what no man had been able to do before. He flew over the Alps, over high passes and deep gorges, and all the world is informed that "the twenty-five miles between Brig and Domodossola which it took the armies of Napoleon a fortnight to negotiate Chavez accomplished by the route of the eagle in exactly forty minutes." This is the name of an unknown youth joined with that of the conqueror of Europe, the greatest military genius of modern times and if his fame shall fill but a small place in history it is none the less true that he had the conquering spirit. That spirit urged him on, rose within him as he overcame difficulties and the complete success of his flight seemed assured; reassured itself as he lay bruised and suffering from frightful injuries, of which he died some days later.

Chavez crossed the Alps not merely to win a prize, but to demonstrate the possibilities of a new invention and a new art. He risked his life in the effort and he was, of course, fully alive to its dangers. Danger is present as yet in all the flights of aviators. Shall the millions, then, scorn the earth and set their hearts upon becoming aviators? The conclusion would be a very absurd one, but the lesson of the willing and the daring remains. It will pass unheeded by many, but it may stir others to some worthy achievement. It is a direct and thrilling appeal to courage, boldness, resolution in every condition of life.

THE TRUE RELIGIOUS SPIRIT

A Man's Faith Is Manifest in the Terms in Which He Takes His Life

"Thou shalt call and I will answer thee."—Job. xiv. 15.

Religion is man's answer to the eternal questions: Has life anything in it, any value, meaning, or possibility greater than it now affords? Am I any more than a creature of toil, food, and rest, with powers of reason that seem to reach only the fringe of some vast unknown?

Have these days of toil any meaning for other days which I do not clearly see? Religion is his answer to the call of the infinite.

Answering in some measure our great questionings, it determines how we shall take this life of ours, whether it shall mean to us the brute's drudgery, the slave's dull submission, or the man's patient, steady, and determined aspiration. It makes all the difference to us all what meaning each man finds in his present living, how he answers to the greater life that lies about us.

The question of religion is not the one as to how you draw your picture of a deity, the views you hold as to ancient legends or supernatural happenings, but in what terms you take your life.

Your interest in any divine being is a matter only of the question of your own essential relationship to divinity, of the possibilities of such higher, sublime elements in yourself.

A MAN'S FAITH

is manifest in the terms in which he takes his life. Is it to him a struggle for advantage, a contest in which cunning and craft and might must win?

Then he believes in a world essentially evil, ruled by laws of blood and violence, where the gods of greed and lust sit enthroned. No matter how orthodox his religious customs and his creed, his real faith is seen in his actual life.

Does one believe that the great important thing is to bring all men into some ecclesiastical uniform, to drill mankind to speak some shibboleth or to sign agreements as to readings in history and literature, then his faith holds that this is a child's play universe in which promotion is won by tricks, where the less the intelligence and the sense of free personality the greater the hope of happiness.

Such a faith manifests itself in the life of superficialities and moral trickery.

here, therefore, a description of universal judgment.

He shall separate . . . the sheep from the goats—The latter bear a bad character in most legendary tales. This seems to be due to their color, they being covered with long jet-black hair, and to their habits. Their browsing upon tender twigs and shrubs works great mischief. They pasture with the sheep, but there is no intimacy, and when they are folded at night both seek their own kind. Sheep, being for the most part white and harmless, represent people of good character. Similar separations into two classes are common in Matthew (compare wheat and chaff, wise and foolish

Such a faith has no satisfying reality, for it offers no answer to our deep questions of life's meaning and destiny. This is the real reason that people care so little for churches.

Usually they are expounding traditions instead of interpreting life. They seem to be much more concerned with what we should think about dead saints than with what we shall now think of our own lives and our ways of living. They are often fighting over forms of ceremonies while people are crying, Tell us what this life means for us!

The true religious spirit takes life in terms of higher values, believes we are here in the process of becoming more than we now are, holds that somehow all the longing, hopes, striving within after more knowledge, light, power, freedom are the foreshadowing of a nobler self and

A LARGER, FINER LIFE.

Faith holds that it is worth while to nourish this life, to pay any price for its development. It holds the confidence of a universe ordered for this spirit of man, this enlarging personality.

So through all the days religious souls have taken life in terms of personality; they have cried with Jesus: "What shall it profit a man to gain the world and lose himself?"

They have believed that all this present toil, pain, struggle might be well worth while if through such a school we might secure the disciplined spirit the educated soul. They have believed that the great business of life is to find this full life for ourselves and to quicken it in others, to so live and serve and love that all shall seek the free, developed personality as the highest good.

He is the religious man to whom living means taking all the things of life, its daily bread and possessions, its toil and duties as the tools through which life itself is fashioned, who lives for that love and hope, for those high ideals and that consciousness of developing selfhood and freedom through which society is saved. Our faith means to us only what it makes all life mean to us. By this we know it; what values does it set first for you?

PICKLING POINTERS.

Corn Relish.—Two dozen ears of sweet corn, two heads of cabbage, four green peppers, eight onions, two cupfuls of sugar, one-half cupful salt, one-eighth pound mustard, four pints of vinegar. Remove seeds from pepper, chop pepper, onions and cabbage fine as desired in chopping bowl, add corn after removing from cob; add salt, sugar and mustard; mix well; add vinegar and cook together; stir well while cooking and put in self-sealers while hot.

Peach Hint.—When preparing peaches for pickling, canning, etc., the following method of peeling them is not only a great time saver, but also avoids any waste of the peaches: Into a medium sized stew pan or kettle of water, just at the boiling point, put three or four heaping tablespoonfuls of borax. Into this drop the peaches, letting them remain three or four minutes. Take them out and the skin will peel off by rubbing with the fingers. Have handy another kettle of cold water. After removing the skins drop the peaches into the cold water, allowing them to remain only an instant. Frequently change the cold water to eliminate all trace of the borax.

Tomato Marmalade.—Remove the skin from four pounds of ripe tomatoes and cut into quarters. Remove the seeds and white part from two oranges and one lemon and slice them thin. Make a syrup of two quarts of sugar and one pint of water, add the tomatoes and fruit; cook until soft. Press through a sieve; return to the kettle and cook until smooth and thick. Turn into jelly glasses and seal.

VARIOUS RECIPES.

Raisin Wine.—Two pounds of seeded raisins chopped fine, juice of one large lemon, one pound of granulated sugar, two gallons of boiling water. Put all of same into stone crock, cover and set aside, stirring it every day for six or seven days. Then strain and bottle and set in cool place for at least eight or ten days. The longer it stands the better it gets. Is a nice light drink to accompany dinners, such as game or fowl.

New Salad.—Peel an apple, core and cut in cross slices. Lay one slice on a few lettuce leaves on each plate, and over it put a layer of cream cheese, which has been put through a potato masher, around this put a circle of mayonnaise dressing. A prettier dish can hardly be imagined, and cream cheese is never so good as when used in this way.

Fruit Pudding.—One-half cup molasses, one-quarter cup butter, one-half cup sweet milk, one cup chopped raisins, one and one-half cups flour, one-half teaspoonful soda, one-half teaspoonful cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful cloves, one-half teaspoonful allspice. Steam two hours.

Pear Conserve.—Five pounds of hard pears cut into half inch dice, five pounds of granulated sugar put on pears, and let stand over night. Next day put on range with yellow rind of two oranges cut into small pieces, juice of three oranges, juice of two lemons, one pound of rais-

It may be a very old lesson, but it is fortunate that it is repeated for every generation in new ways. For without the will to do and the soul to dare there would be death to the spirit that giveth life to the world and that is absolutely indispensable to progress.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON,

OCT. 16.

Lesson III. The Last Judgment,

Matt. 25. 31-48. Golden

Text, Matt. 25. 40.

Verse 31. The Son of man—What he did in his humiliation was done in humanity's stead, and what he claims in his glory he claims as humanity's Head. He is the "Race-Man."

All the angels with him—The doctrine of angels is full of comfort. Nothing is taught more explicitly than that there is a "family in heaven" as on earth, who "behold the face of our Father," who are moved to joy by the penitence of the sinner, and are models in the performance of the Father's will (Matt. 6. 10). In connection with Christ's coming in judgment, they are represented as a kind of court surrounding the throne and giving majesty to the scene.

On the throne—We must do our best to rid our minds of the idea of a judicial seat which shines with material splendor. This is a picturesque way of setting forth the real triumph of Christ reigning as King and declaring judgment upon the deeds of all men of all time. However many seed may have been lost in the sowing, and however deeply entangled the roots of the good seed may have become in their fight for their life, the good is at last regnant, and the evil is to be expelled forever.

Shall come in his glory—There is no doubt that Christ has come already—after the resurrection at Pentecost, in the destruction of the Holy City—and that he comes still. But a moral view of the universe demands a personal return of Christ in judgment, for the consummation of his kingdom, the establishment of righteousness, and the casting out of wrong. This will be his true glory.

32. All the nations—This is a disputed point, upon whose meaning depends the interpretation of what follows. It is significant that the "end" has come, and that therefore the gospel of the kingdom has been preached in the whole world for a testimony to all the nations (Matt. 24. 14). This does not necessarily mean that all have heard the name of Christ, but it does mean that all have had the opportunity to know their obligations to their fellows, and in this account that is the decisive test. We have and shrubs work great mischief. They pasture with the sheep, but there is no intimacy, and when they are folded at night both seek their own kind. Sheep, being for the most part white and harmless, represent people of good character. Similar separations into two classes are common in Matthew (compare wheat and chaff, wise and foolish builders, wheat and tares, wise and witless virgins, good and bad fish, etc.).

33. Right hand—The position of honor. The King could bestow upon them no higher token of approval than to give them a place at his right hand.

34. The King—The change from "Son of man" is noteworthy. Seated upon his throne, in glorious majesty, with all people before him, his state is kingly. "This King not only comes in his kingdom (Matt. 16. 28), but has kingdoms to bestow, which have been waiting throughout all time for their proper sovereigns." Compare Dan. 7. 27.

Inherit—Receive as the rightful portion of sons.

37. When saw we thee?—Some have professed Christ and thought to be judged by that profession, whereas their deeds of kindness have been taken as a test of the sincerity of their profession. Others have never known Christ, but, having exercised themselves in Christ-like charity, have proven themselves to be his friends. Both classes are surprised. But we need not be. The ultimate test is not some artificial conformity to a creed, but the exhibition of love which is the rarest fruit of the Spirit of Christ.

40. Ye did it unto . . . my brethren . . . ye did it unto me—The words in Heb. 2. 11 come to mind. This is perfect brotherhood.

41. Note the changes in this address to the wicked from that to the righteous. They are cursed, not of my Father (34), but as an inevitable outcome of their wilful life. Their doom was prepared, not from the foundation of the world, nor for them, but for the devil and his angels. The power and opportunity of escape, therefore, was ever theirs.

Eternal fire—There are here two questions of interest: (1) What is the nature of this fire, or punishment (46)? That it is prepared for the devil and his angels, spiritual and not corporal beings, precludes something like remorse, which confutes the possibility of its being material. Sumes the soul like a fire, must be meant. (2) What is meant by "eternal"? The authorized version gives no help here, for it translates the same word in two ways: "everlasting fire," "eternal life" (46). The word in the New Testament is qualitative rather than quantitative. It does not refer to an indefinite continuance of time, but to a certain kind of experience. Endless punishment and eternal punishment are not of necessity the same, though they may be. However, the loss or suffering involved is irreparable.

FLATTERY.

Wife—"I suppose if you should meet some pretty young girl you would cease to care for me!"

Husband—"What nonsense you talk! What do I care for youth and beauty? You suit me all right."

But . . . self-made man never neglects to worship his creator.

A good time doesn't always depend on the price you pay for it.

Everything tends to smaller collars.

Shawl collars are still a feature of coats.

Egyptian embroideries are in high favor.

The low lying effect in hats still prevails.

The banded-in effects are even seen in coats.

Beaver hats with enormous rosettes of tulle are worn.

Some of the richest opera cloaks have kimono sleeves.

The badger aigrette is in high favor and is beautiful.

Large wings are in demand for tailored and semi-dress hats.

The chenille dot is going to have another inning in veilings.

White fox and ermine continue to be the leading evening furs.

Metallic, beaded and Persian effects are popular in lacedom.

A late fad is the use of shadow Chantilly under white chiffon.

Roses and other flowers made of satin ribbon are greatly in vogue.

Dressy gowns for afternoon are being made of striped satin four-lards.

Antique brocades are fashionable for elegant evening gowns and cloaks.

Most of the colored laces are shown in black with a design worked in colors.

Sleeves seem to have definitely decided to remain short on dressy waists.

Shaded or ombre plumes, willow in style, are favored for large dressy hats.

The frills about the throat called clown collars are popular for young girls.

Children's boots are worn high and are more fashionable in button than in lace.

Light weight or shadow Chantilly nets are favored in Paris at the present time.

The short coats are cut with a slightly flaring hip or with one that is snug.

Skunk and cub bear will be the modish trimming furs for gowns and velvet suits.

Many of the new coats for girls show a patent leather belt hung low. This seems to be a fashion that holds favor a long time.

Many pretty sleeves are seen on new coats, somewhat larger than heretofore, and they are frequently finished with a deep, turnback cuff.

The fine real Irish insertions are much used upon children's handsome little frocks, with real cluny for second choice among the heavy laces and with valenciennes as popular as ever.

The giant bows of summer are to be carried over into the autumn and winter, and will be seen on many of the smartest hats.

The new fashions continue to be molded on the narrow silhouette of the late summer models. From two to two and a half yards is now considered the correct width at the hem.

A CURE.

"Yes, sir, I was totally cured of a serious case of dyspepsia during my vacation."

teaspoonful allspice. Steam two hours.

Pear Conserve.—Five pounds of hard pears cut into half inch dice, five pounds of granulated sugar put on pears, and let stand over night. Next day put on range with yellow rind of two oranges cut into small pieces, juice of three oranges, juice of two lemons, one pound of raisins. Boil slowly for two hours or until quite thick. Just before taking from range add one-half pound walnut meats, broken into small pieces. This is most delicious. Put into pint jars.

CAKE.

Hermits.—One cupful of sour cream, two cupfuls of brown sugar, one cupful of chopped raisins, two-thirds of a cupful of butter, two beaten eggs, one teaspoonful each of soda, cinnamon, cloves, and nutmeg; flour to make as stiff as can be stirred. Drop by tablespoonfuls on well buttered pan, leaving plenty of room for them to spread.

Plain Fruit Cake.—One cupful of sour cream, one cupful of brown sugar, one-half cupful of molasses, three cupfuls of flour, one cupful of raisins, one cupful of chopped walnuts, spice to taste, one teaspoonful of soda in tablespoonful of hot water, one-half teaspoonful of salt, and one egg.

Five Cakes with One Baking.—Bake in square tins a large two-layer white cake. Moisten one and one-fourth pounds powdered sugar with enough boiling water to make it spread. Flavor with orange. Put the layers together with part of this. Cut two pieces of cardboard the length of the cake and three-fourths inch wide. Cut shallow incisions each way across cake, dividing it in quarters. Cut one cardboard in two and insert the three pieces; ice two quarters with the white icing; sprinkle one with chopped nuts; color the icing pink; ice a quarter and sprinkle with cocoanut. Cut into a saucer one-half square chocolate; melt over the hole of a boiling teakettle; mix with icing and spread. If another variety is wanted, use out batter for one layer and color the rest pink. Instead of putting the two layers together when baked, cut each in two and put quarters of the same color together. Ice with colors as given above. Nut filling may be used if desired.

CORN.

To Can Corn.—Cut corn from cob and for every nine cupfuls add one-half cup of sugar and one-half cup salt. Boil twenty minutes in two cups of water. Can while hot. This will make three quarts. Before using soak thirty minutes in warm water.

Corn Soup.—One large fowl or four pounds of veal (the knuckle or neck will do); put over fire in one gallon cold water without salt, cover tightly and simmer slowly till the meat slips from the bones. Set aside with the meat a cup of the liquor; strain the soup to remove all bones and rags of meat; grate one dozen ears of green corn, scraping cobs to remove the heart of the kernel, add corn to soup, with salt pepper, and a little parsley, and simmer slowly half an hour. Just before serving add a tablespoonful of flour beaten very thorough with a tablespoon of butter. Serve hot. To serve chicken or veal put broth which was reserved in a clean saucepan, beat one egg, a tablespoon of butter, and a teaspoon of flour together very thoroughly, and add to the broth with salt, pepper, and a little chopped parsley. Arrange meat on dish, pour over dressing, boiling hot, and serve at once.

MAPLE RECIPES.

Maple Mousse.—Whip one-half pint of whipping cream until stiff. Then add enough maple syrup to color and flavor the cream. Put into a quart fruit jar and pack in ice. This makes a quart of delicious, easily prepared, and inexpensive cream.

Maple Sugar Biscuits.—Make a biscuit dough with one quart of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of butter, and just enough milk to make a soft dough. When ready to roll out stir in quickly one cupful maple sugar cut in pieces the size of a pea. Roll out, cut into small biscuits and bake quickly in a hot oven.

Maple Custards.—One pint milk, two eggs, two tablespoonfuls sweet cream, three tablespoonfuls maple sugar which has been scraped from the cake. Mix thoroughly eggs and sugar; then add the milk and cream. Pour into a shallow vessel, set in pan of water, and bake in a slow oven for about thirty-five minutes.

MACAROONS.

Betty's Macaroons.—Two and one-half cups of rolled oats, two teaspoonfuls of vanilla, one-half cup of sugar, two well beaten eggs, two teaspoonfuls vanilla. Mix thoroughly and drop in half teaspoonful on buttered tins. Bake in moderate oven until crisp and lightly browned.

Delicious Macaroons.—Whites of three eggs beaten stiff. Stir in one cup white granulated sugar, put in an old-fashioned soup plate and set over tea kettle containing boiling water for eight minutes or until crust forms around edge. Remove and stir in two and one-third cups of shredded cocoanut and one teaspoon of vanilla. Drop off spoon on well buttered tins and bake in slow oven. Peanuts put through chopper may be used instead of cocoanut.

WORTH KNOWING.

Washing tubs which are not in constant use will crack unless some water is kept in them.

A few drops of lemon squeezed into the water will make the darkest looking potato boil white.

To thicken peach jelly which otherwise remains too liquid use one-third tart apples to two-thirds peaches.

METHODS OF MILKING.

Most men think they know all about milking—can't tell them anything about that; and yet, if we could know what the cows think on that question, it may be we would find that there are some things for us to learn. It is worth while, at any rate, to look to our ways in this respect and get all the suggestions we can. For when we have said and done all, the process of milking is one of the most important farmers have to perform.

First, then, is sympathy on the part of the milker. It never pays to be harsh with cows. If this could only be deeply impressed on the minds of men everywhere it would add thousands of dollars to the farm revenue of the country.

And then, a good grip with the hand counts for much. Some men have a way of bending the fingers so that the ends stick right into the sides of the teats. If the nails are long, milkers who do that cause cows a good deal of pain, and anything that does that hinders a cow from doing her best; because cows have nerves and anything that effects them unfavorably makes the cow hold back part of her milk, and I am quite sure that what she does give is not as rich as it otherwise would be. The nails should be well trimmed and the fingers kept out pretty straight, only curving to clasp the teat firmly and evenly.

There are milkers who jerk the teats hard when at their work. This certainly cannot be very comfortable to the cow. Far better to squeeze steadily, holding the hand up in an easy position.

The cow cannot help appreciating this effort on the part of her master to be thoughtful of her comfort.

The noises which are heard in many stables at milking time are distressing to people who have been blessed with nerves. Shouting, scolding, perhaps swearing and kicking and pounding—these are frequent conditions at such times.

They all hinder cows from doing the best they can. No man who loves his cows or who has an eye to his own interests will permit such things for a moment.

At milking time the cows should be in a quiet state of mind and body.

Even to be nibbled by a fly takes something from the peaceful condition most conducive to the best results. For that reason it is a good plan to throw a nice clean blanket over the cow's back while milking.

All harsh sounds should be shut out. Some cows like to hear men sing. By studying them we may learn which these cows are and respond to their tastes in this direction. Others like to have it as still as possible at milking time. It is wise to cater to this disposition.

The best word to describe the most favorable condition at milking time is comfort. The more nearly we can bring about such a state among the cows the more successful we will be.

A LONG WASH DAY.

It Lasted a Week, but Came Only Four Times a Year.

Every one has heard of the German and Dutch method of accumulating soiled clothes and of having a wash day only two or three times a year. Not every one realizes, perhaps that the custom was brought over to this country from Holland and that the Dutch settlers long continued its practice. In these days of the ever ready laundry it is strange to read of the laborious period which came to our New Amsterdam ancestors four times a year. Helen Everson Smith tells about it in "Colonial Days and Ways."

The custom of quarterly clothes washings was maintained notwithstanding our summer heats and the immense quantities of clothes necessary to keep up the state of cleanliness required by Dutch instincts. A New Englander who had married a citizen of New York writes in 1760 of this practice, which was undoubtedly strange to her:

"Grandmother Blum is so deep in her quarterly wash this week that she has time only to send her love."

The washing was done in an out-house called the bleekeryen, where the water was boiled in immense kettles and all the other processes of the laundry work carried on. The work required not less than a week, frequently two weeks.

During the time preceding this cruelly hard labor the soiled clothes were accumulating in very large bampers of open basketwork. This custom originated the necessity for the great stores of linen with which every bride was provided.

A WOMAN'S HAT.

There's a Large Pot of Trouble Brewing For One Milliner.

Mr. Standish was mad when he went into the millinery establishment, and the longer he stayed the madder he got. Presently he walked over to a stunning black creation that hung on a peg near the window and said:

"This is the hat I want to see you about."

The proprietor came forward.

"What can I do for you?" he asked.

"You can fix this hat over the way my wife asked you to," said Standish explosively. "She wants the feather put on the other side, that bow moved to the front, and she wants the rim to bulge a little more over the temples."

Seeing a guilty flush creep over the proprietor's face, Standish went on with increased heat:

"She says you have refused to make any alterations on the ground that a stitch added to or subtracted from the hat is bound to ruin it, but I tell you that's all nonsense. My wife knows how she wants her hat to look, and if she can't stand up for her rights I'll do it for her. She is coming around this afternoon to try the hat on again. If it isn't ready by that time there will be no end of a row."

The proprietor twirled the black hat on his forefinger and looked from it to the head saleswoman lugubrously.

"I remember," he said, "that the lady who ordered that hat did bring it back yesterday to be remodeled. Perhaps it will be possible to make the alterations suggested after all."

The manager's humility made Standish feel very proud of himself.

"That's the only way to deal with those fellows," he said when he left the shop. "You've got to meet them on their own level. It takes a man to do that. No wonder women get cheated out of their very eyeteeth. They haven't got sand enough to say the

HEALTH

HINTS FOR NURSING.

The invalid's budding up depends to a large extent on proper nourishment. His appetite is likely to be uncertain, and the restrictions of prescribed dieting make it difficult to tempt it always with new and appetizing dishes. It is hardly less important, therefore, that the meals should be served in an attractive manner than that they should be intelligently planned and properly cooked.

Always see that the patient is ready before his tray is brought in. If his meal is to be served in bed, prop him up well, put something warm over his shoulders, and see that he is generally comfortable.

The best bed-tray is a wooden one, with folding legs, which may be had at the largest stores and costs less than two dollars. Use the prettiest china and take pains to serve the food hot. Nothing is more unappetizing than tepid coffee or limp toast. Remember that small portions are much more tempting to a delicate appetite.

Recipes for individual dishes are useful. The invalid cannot be fed with the food prepared for the household, and it is economical to make just enough of a dish for one meal. It also makes an appetizing variety easier.

During the earliest stage of convalescence a limited soft diet is ordered, a soft egg being often one of the first things allowed. The following articles of liquid diet are appetizing and at the same time simple and economical:

Coddled Egg.—Put the egg in a saucepan and cover it with boiling water. Place a lid on the saucepan and set it on the shelf of the stove or some warm place for seven or eight minutes. The white should be about as stiff as jelly.

Cocoa is very nourishing, and is made more digestible by cooking the powder separately. Allow a scant teaspoonful to a cup. Mix this with a little water, and allow it to cook fifteen or twenty minutes in a double boiler before adding the milk. A few drops of vanilla give it a delicious flavor.

Thick soups which are made without meat have for their foundation white sauce. The recipe given here makes only enough for one portion, and is very convenient in the preparation of single dishes.

White Sauce.—Melt one-half teaspoonful of butter. Add slowly one-half tablespoonful of flour, stirring thoroughly. Then add very gradually one-half cup of hot milk and a pinch of salt, and stir the sauce steadily till it thickens. If lumpy, beat it smooth.

A variety of soups may be made by adding different vegetables to this sauce. In the directions which follow, just enough of each vegetable is used to make one portion of soup.

Cream of Tomato.—Put into one-half cup of strained tomato a pinch of soda. As soon as the effervescence has stopped, add the sauce and serve immediately.

Potato Soup.—Cook one-half of a medium-sized potato and one-half of a thin slice of onion in a double boiler. When the potato is thoroughly done, drain off the water. Mash the potato, chop the onion

To keep outdoor brass bright, clean the brass as usual, then rub it carefully over with a soft cloth dipped in vaseline, and afterwards polish with a dry duster. This will keep it from tarnishing quickly, even in the dampest weather.

Tea and Coffee Pots.—Put a teaspoonful of baking soda into each pot, fill almost full with cold water, put on the range and let boil two or three minutes, pour out the water and wash with clean suds, then rinse with clear water. The soda removes every bit of stain and also sweetens the pots.

A simple remedy for sick headache is a drink made by squeezing the juice of a lemon into a half glass of cold water, adding a pinch of sugar and a half teaspoon of baking soda. Drink while it is effervescing.

Grape juice is good for an invalid. Put two tablespoonfuls grape juice in a wine glass with a little shaved ice, add the white of one egg which has been beaten to a stiff froth. If the juice is too tart, add a little sugar.

Cold tea is excellent to use in cleaning grained wood. Apply with a soft rag, rubbing only a small portion at a time, and polish immediately with a clean tannal rag before it has time to dry.

Blanc mange is very attractive when moulded in the form of snowballs and placed upon beds of green and red jelly. Send to the table with decorations of whipped cream flavored in some appropriate way.

WHY HE HAD NO LUCK.

A stanch teetotaler and an enthusiastic fisherman had a good stretch of the Dee to fish in and engaged the services of an experienced boatman. But night after night he came back with empty creel and at length departed in disgust.

When he had gone the boatman was approached and asked how it was that a fairly expert fisherman had such a run of ill luck.

"A weel," said the man, "he had nae whuskie, an' I took him where there was nae fush."

HIMKNOWLEDGY.

Stanley Jordan, the well-known Episcopal minister, having cause to be anxious about his son's college examination, told him to telegraph the results. The boy sent the following message—"Hymn 312, fifth verse, last two lines." Looking it up, the father found the words: "Sorrow vanquished, labor ended, Jordan passed."

ing time is comfort. The more nearly we can bring about such a state among the cows the more successful we will be.

IN THE DAIRY.

Good nature is the most economical milk feed that a cow can have and when pastures are short green soiling comes next.

Not one but a scrub dairyman would use a scrub bull. Progress and scrub stock were never yet found on the same farm.

A cow that has a good appetite, eats heartily and keeps thin in flesh while giving milk is usually a good one to keep.

The dairyman who takes his money out of the savings bank to build a silo makes a good investment of idle capital.

An ounce of salt per day is about right for a cow. They need a little more in summer than in winter.

A good stiff brush, made like a paint brush that will reach every corner and crevice is a fine thing, with which to wash milk cans.

Twenty-five good cows will make a profit, but a thousand poor ones will send a man into bankruptcy in short order.

If you can buy the cow that the other man doesn't want to sell, you are generally pretty safe.

Never put fresh milk into a warm vessel. If it had been in the sun it should be filled with cold water at least half an hour before milking time.

The chemist cannot find that a silo adds anything to the nutritive elements in a cornstalk, but it does add palatability, and this counts for a great deal.

No one can afford to keep a fat dairy cow. If a cow gets fat while in milk she uses too much of her feed for other purposes than making milk of it.

The man who does not get more than two dollars' return for every dollar's worth of feed his cows consume has not yet learned the first lesson of good dairy management.

IN A NICE COOL SEWER.

It was a hot evening following a regular old scorcher of a day and Casey and the family were sitting out on the front porch trying to keep cool.

"Sure, it was an awful day in the kitchen," said Mrs. Casey.

"I have t' smile when I hear ye complainin' about the heat, for as a matter iv fact ye don't know what heat is," said Casey.

"Oh, don't I know," said Mrs. Casey. "Sure I'd change places with you any day, for while I'm workin' over a hot cook stove all day I'm thinkin' iv the fine picnic ye're havin' workin' down there in that nice cool sewer."

"That's the only way to deal with those fellows," he said when he left the shop. "You've got to meet them on their own level. It takes a man to do that. No wonder women get cheated out of their very eyeteeth. They haven't got sand enough to say the things that have to be said to secure their rights."

Throughout the day Standish continued to revel in self congratulations, and he actually went home half an hour ahead of time to see if his wife's hat had been metamorphosed into the thing of beauty he had suggested.

"Well," said he jubilantly, "was the hat all right?"

"All right?" said Mrs. Standish. "They hadn't even touched it. How could you expect it to be all right when you didn't stop in to see about it?"

"But I did stop," protested Standish. "I saw everybody about the place and laid the whole establishment out in great shape, there's their card to prove I was there. I packed it up as I was passing out."

Mrs. Standish took up the card and read the name aloud.

"O-o-o-h!" she cried. "Is that where you went? Why, you got into the wrong place. What on earth will that manager think? He must think you are crazy."

"I don't care if he does," said Standish limply, "but I would like to know what the owner of that black hat will say when she sees it made over according to my directions."

Economical.

A good story is related of an English theatrical manager who by thrift and hard work had amassed a fortune. Previous to the production of one play the stage carpenters had to repair a trap, and the head carpenter went to the manager and informed him that it could not be done in the dark.

"Well, lad, thee won't have t' gas," answered the manager. "Here, tak' this and buy a candle."

And he handed him a halfpenny. The carpenter pleaded that they wanted two in order to get sufficient light.

"How long will t' job tak' thee?" asked the manager.

"About ten minutes," was the reply.

"Then cut t' candle in two," was the answer. "Thee won't have any more money."

Mash the potato, chop the onion fine, season with pepper and a little chopped parsley. Add the sauce and enough hot milk or water to fill a large cup.

Cream of Celery.—In one-half cup of water, cook until tender one-quarter cup of celery, cut in small pieces. Renew the water as it boils away. Mash the celery in the water add white sauce, season and strain.

Green-Pea Soup.—Cook one-half cup of peas until soft in one cup of water. If canned peas are used, wash them, and do not use the brine in the can. Mash them in the water in which they are cooked. Strain and add the sauce.

Corn Soup.—Cook one-quarter cup of chopped corn in one-half cup water for twenty minutes. Rub through a strainer, juice and all, and add the sauce. A few drops of onion juice improves the flavor.

Cream of Spinach.—Rub through a strainer enough well-cooked spinach to make one and one-half tablespoonfuls. Add this to the sauce, with enough milk to fill the cup.

Tiger and Crocodile in a Battle in the Water.

In India a native went to bathe in a ravine. He was in the water up to his neck when a tiger on the hill above gave a leap toward its prey. But the tiger had not calculated that, since his victim was much lower than himself, a leap of the right strength for a horizontal range would carry him far beyond his mark; consequently he fell some ten feet on the other side.

Now, it happened that a hungry crocodile was at the same time drawing a bee line under water toward the native. When the crocodile had almost come upon his prey he heard a splash just in front and made a dash, bringing his enormous jaws down on the tiger's paw.

The bather nearly fainted with fright when he saw the tiger fall into the water, and for a few moments he could not understand why the creature did not devour him. Why did he persist in keeping one of his paws under water, beating savagely with the other? And the water turned red!

Then all at once the assaults of the tiger became more furious, and his growls developed into roars. The huge tail of a crocodile reared up out of the water. The obvious intention was to pull the tiger under water and drown him, and the tiger, understanding this purpose, tried to frustrate it by beating the snout of the crocodile with his other paw. But the snout was too far down, and he left much of his force on the surface of the water. His struggles became more and more feeble, and at length he disappeared altogether, only a cluster of bubbles remaining to show where he had been.

His fight, however, had been a game one, not entirely in vain, for when the bodies of the two beasts finally came to the surface it was seen that the tiger had literally torn away the whole front of the crocodile's face and had blinded it so that its victory was a useless one.—Chicago Record-Herald.

ERNESTOWN FAIR.

The Annual Show of the Ernestown Agricultural Society was held at Odessa, on Friday last. Despite the unfavourable weather early in the week a large crowd greeted the fair, though not quite up to some other years. The exhibits were good though slightly less in quantity than usual, owing no doubt to the wet roads and grounds. The officers of the society are to be congratulated on having so successful a show in spite of the drawbacks mentioned. Following is the list of prize winners:—

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations.

ANY person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section along side his homestead. Price, $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry including the time required to earn homestead patent and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.90 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

PURIFIED HIS BLOOD

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills
Healed Mr. Wilson's Sores

When the sewers of the body—bowels, kidneys and skin ducts—get clogged up, the blood quickly becomes impure and frequently sores break out over the body. The way to heal them, as Mr. Richard Wilson, who lives near London, Ont., found, is to purify the blood. He writes:

"For some time I had been in a low, depressed condition. My appetite left me and I soon began to suffer from indigestion. Quite a number of small sores and blotches formed all over my skin. I tried medicine for the blood and used many kinds of ointments, but without satisfactory results. What was wanted was a thorough cleansing of the blood, and I looked about in vain for some medicine that would accomplish this.

At last Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills were brought to my notice, and they are one of the most wonderful medicines I have ever known. My blood was purified in a very short time, sores healed up, my indigestion vanished. They always have a place in my home and are looked upon as the family remedy."

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cleanse the system thoroughly. Sold by all dealers at 25c a box.

IMPALED BY AN ARROW.

Pinned Through the Neck to a Tree, Yet He Survived.

It was in the summer of 1850 that George Wainwright and Ben Spencer, each in charge of a train of freight wagons, were headed for the Missouri river to bring supplies back to Colorado points. The Indians were very troublesome in those days, and these two outfits always camped together for protection. One night they had arranged the camp, with the wagons forming a circle, and everybody but the guards was to be inside. Wainwright preferred to sleep in a clump of cottonwoods about a quarter of a mile off, and there he fixed himself with his negro servant as a bodyguard. Neither the camp nor Wainwright was disturbed during the night, but early the next morning while Wainwright was sitting on the ground with his back to a tree drinking his tin of coffee an arrow from an unseen foe entered his neck at the right of the jugular vein and was driven with such force as to impale the victim to the tree. The negro, believing his master was killed, ran to Spencer's camp and gave the alarm.

Spencer and some of his men rushed over to Wainwright. Instead of being dead Wainwright was not even seriously injured. Spencer cut the arrow off close to the point of entrance and then gently drew Wainwright's head forward until he was released. The victim suffered but little inconvenience from the wound, and by the time the trip was completed it was entirely healed.—Los Angeles Times.

Tingling Ears.

If your ears burn, people say, some one is talking about you. This is very old, for Pliny says, "When our ears do glow and tingle some do talk of us in our absence."

Shakespeare in "Much Ado About Nothing" makes Beatrice say to Ursula and Hero, who had been talking of her, "What fire is in mine ears?"

Sir Thomas Browne ascribes this conceit to the superstition of guardian angels, who touch the right ear if the talk is favorable and the left if otherwise. This is done to cheer or warn.

One ear tingles, some there be
That are snarling now at me!

Sinking Spells Every Few Days

"At the time I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy I was having sinking spells every few days. My hands and feet would get cold; I could scarcely breathe, and could feel myself gradually sinking away until I would be unconscious. Those about me could not tell there was life in me. After these spells I would be very weak and nervous, sleepless and without appetite; had neuralgia in my head and heart. After taking the remedy a short time all this disappeared and in a few weeks all the heart trouble was gone."

Don't be Bald

Nearly Anyone May Secure a Splendid Growth of Hair.

We have a remedy that has a record of growing hair and curing baldness in 93 out of every 100 cases where used according to directions for a reasonable length of time. That may seem like a strong statement—it is, and we mean it to be, and no one should doubt it until they have put our claims to an actual test.

We are so certain Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will cure dandruff, prevent baldness, stimulate the scalp and hair roots, stop falling hair, and grow new hair, that we personally give our positive guarantee to refund every penny paid us for it in every instance where it does not give entire satisfaction to the user.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is as pleasant to use as clear spring water. It is delightfully perfumed, and does not grease or gum the hair.

Two sizes, 50c. and $1.00. With our guarantee back of it, you certainly take no risk. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store T. B. Wallace Drug-gist.

CARRIED OFF BY A LION.

Thrilling Experience of a Ranger in the Transvaal.

Two men at least have given accounts of their sensations when they were carried off by lions—the great ex-growth is exceedingly slow, almost beyond belief, indicating that only a little nourishment is necessary to keep them alive. In a dry time they have the power to suspend growth altogether, renewing it again at the fall of rain. This peculiarity alone is enough to make the lichen a vegetable wonder, as it is a property possessed by no other species of plant. Another interesting fact about lichens is that they grow only where the air is free from dust and smoke. They may be said to be a sure indication of the purity of the air, as they are never found growing in cities and towns where the atmosphere is impregnated with dust, soot, smoke and other impurities.

The Chicle Tree.

Chewing gum is nothing but chicle mixed with sugar and flavoring, and chicle is the gum of a tree that grows plentifully in Mexico and Central America and that of recent years has been cultivated on a large scale in Yucatan. The chicle tree is not unlike the india rubber tree, and the gum was first shipped to America by men who believed that in it they had a perfect substitute for rubber. In this, however, they were mistaken, as it was found that the chicle gum was insoluble. Not to this day has any medium acid or alkali, spirit or ether been found that will dissolve it.—Argonaut.

Thrilling Experience of a Ranger in the Transvaal.

Two men at least have given accounts of their sensations when they were carried off by lions—the great explorer Livingstone and a man named Wolbuter, a ranger of game preserves in the Transvaal. Wolbuter's adventure is not secondary in interest to Livingstone's experience. His story, which was attested by the certificate of the magistrate of the district, was substantially as follows:

He was riding along a Kafir path about an hour after sunset. It had been a long march, and he had pushed on ahead of his companions. His dog barked at something, and a moment later Wolbuter saw a lion crouching close to him on the right hand side. The ranger turned his horse sharply, a circumstance that no doubt caused the lion to miss the spring.

Wolbuter was unseated. At the same moment he saw another lion coming from the opposite direction. The horse rushed off, with the first lion in pursuit, and the second lion picked Wolbuter up almost before he touched the ground and gripped him by the right shoulder in such a position that he was face up, with his legs and body dragging underneath the beast. The lion trotted down the path, uttering a loud, growling, purring noise.

Wolbuter's sensations were not those of Livingstone, who said he was in a state of apathy, with entire absence of pain during the time the lion had him. The game ranger suffered terribly, both mentally and physically, and saw no possible way of escape. The lion took him nearly 200 yards.

Suddenly Wolbuter bethought him of his sheath knife, which he carried in his belt behind his right hip. On reaching a large tree with overhanging roots the lion stopped, whereupon Wolbuter stabbed him twice in the side with his left hand. It was ascertained afterward that the first stab touched the bottom of the heart and that the second one slit it down for some distance.

The lion immediately dropped Wolbuter, and again the game ranger struck him, this time in the throat, severing an artery. The lion jumped back and stood facing him, growling. Wolbuter scrambled to his feet, shouting at the top of his lungs. He expected the beast to come at him again, but it did not. Instead, it turned slowly and, still growling, went a few paces. Soon its growls turned to moans. These, in turn, ceased, and the ranger knew that the beast was then dead.

Wolbuter got up the tree as fast as his injured arm would permit, and hardly was he seated when the first lion, which had been after the horse, came back on the trail of blood. By this time the plucky ranger was so faint that he tied himself to the tree to prevent himself from falling out.

He was found by his companions, who took him to a place of safety. The lion he had killed was an old male, and the weapon used was an ordinary sheath knife.—New York Tribune.

BABIES SORES

Every mother should realize that the skin of her baby is so tender that the secretions of the body often lead to rashes, eruptions, etc., all of which may be removed by Zam-Buk. Scores of restless, crying babies, upon examination, are found to be suffering from some form of skin irritation or "heat." Don't let the little one suffer when Zam-Buk will cure!

Mrs. L. Hood, of 475 Alexander Avenue, Winnipeg, says: "I have proved the value of Zam-Buk when applied to children's sores. Some nasty sores broke out around my baby's mouth, and despite all the preparations used, they refused to heal. I took him to St. Boniface hospital and he remained there for two weeks. At the end of that time he was no better, and we again took him home. I was then advised to try Zam-Buk and obtained a supply. The effect of the first few applications was very gratifying, and I continued with the use of the balm. A little perseverance resulted in a complete cure."

Mrs. E. Cocker, of Yorkton, Sask., says: "My little baby girl had a bad running sore all over her little chin. A few applications of Zam-Buk healed the sore in such a perfect manner that no scar was left behind."

Scores of similar cases could be quoted. Zam-Buk is absolutely pure—contains no rasped animal fat, no mineral coloring matter, no irritating poisons. It is the ideal balm for baby.

Zam-Buk cures eczema, rashes, ringworm, chapped hands, scurvy, heat rashes, cuts, burns, ulcers, discharging sores, and all skin injuries and diseases. 50c. box, all druggists and stores, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Don't take the risk of using harmful imitations!

Hennequin's Infant Tablets

Save Babies' Lives. For Babies and Small Children. (Made in France.)
Dr. Hennequin's Infant Tablets saved our little girl's life. Three doctors said she could not live. The Tablets cured her.—MR. E. R. McBRIDE, Napanee, Ont.
My baby was so weak from sickness that he could hardly walk. We thought he would die. We could find nothing to help him. I was given a sample package of three Hennequin Tablets; we used them: I saw a change at once. We secured the Tablets and our baby improved every day, and is now a bright, fat, good natured boy; you could not believe he was the same child. They certainly cured my baby and saved his life. I believe them to be the best medicine ever sold for babies. Mothers if your babies are not well take my advice and try these Tablets.—MRS. JAMES RIDDELL, Barrydale, Ont.
We have hundreds of such letters. If the Tablets were not what you need we would not offer to give them away and prepay them. If your baby is not well send for trial package. Hennequin Tablets have the letter "H" stamped upon them—this is your guarantee. All dealers, 25c per package, or 5 for $1.00 sent postpaid to any address.

TUMOR OF YEARS GROWTH

Removed by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Winnipeg, Man.—"Eleven years ago I went to the Victoria Hospital, Montreal, suffering with a growth in the uterus. The doctors said it was a tumor, and could not be removed, as it would cause instant death. They found that other organs were affected and said I could not live more than six months in the condition I was in. After I came home I saw your advertisement in the paper and commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it constantly for two years, and still take it at times, and both my husband and myself claim that it was the means of saving my life. I highly recommend it to suffering women."

Mrs. ORILLA BRADLEY, 284 Johnson Ave., Winnipeg, Manitoba.

One of the greatest triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the conquering of woman's dread enemy—tumor. If you have mysterious pains, inflammation, ulceration or displacement, don't wait for time to confirm your fears and go through the horrors of a hospital operation, but try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills.

ARSENIC POISONING.

The Torture That Ensues Before Death Brings Relief.

When a single dose of arsenic in sufficient quantity to be felt has been taken colicky pains, bowel disorder and perhaps nausea result. In the course of an hour after a poisonous dose has been taken an intense burning pain is felt in the esophagus and stomach. This spreads to the entire anterior portion of the lower part of the trunk. A sense of constriction at the throat and an acrid, metallic taste accompany the pain. Then vomiting and relaxation of the bowels begin. As the case progresses the symptoms increase in intensity. Then comes a thirst that water will not allay, although it apparently increases the stomach disturbance. The victim groans and writhes.

Now he implores the doctor to save him. Then he begs to be killed and put out of pain. The extremities become icy. The pulse is small, feeble and frequent, and the breathing is labored, embarrassed and painful because of abdominal tenderness. The surface of the body becomes dark and of that bluish color that medical men call cyanosed. Violent cramps add their torture, exhaustion becomes collapse, convulsions or coma ensues, and death ends the agony. The torture lasts sometimes from five to twenty hours.

In some cases these symptoms occur, but in a modified form, and the doctor will apparently get the better of the disease. The remission will be but for

LAWYERS IN GERMANY.

They Cannot Advertise, and Their Fees Are Fixed by Law.

The German law fixes the exact fees which a German attorney has to claim for all kinds of professional work, and the rechtsanwalt can charge neither more nor less.

These fees apply to all matters of the civil code and of criminal cases. The amount, according to the Green Bag, depends exclusively on the value of the object of contention.

It is an old though still unfulfilled wish of German lawyers to have a new fixed list of fees, not made after the old and low standard of the year 1879, but made with consideration to the changes—the numerous decided changes—which have taken place since that year.

The rechtsanwalt is attorney and counselor at law all in one (in England solicitor and barrister). The rechtsanwalt can never be a business man, as is the case in the United States.

The exercise of the law is not to be considered a calling of profession, but is to be looked on more as a public office. According to the lawyers' code of the 1st of July, 1878, a lawyer is charged publicly with certain duties.

He is obliged to have his residence in the town or district where he is appointed (so called residence duty). Further, he must conduct himself in and out of office in a way befitting his professional and social standing—i. e., duty due to his rank. Thus a lawyer is forbidden to advertise in newspapers, by canvassing, etc., or to buy or take over a practice already made as being unworthy of his calling.

His position in society is between officials and scholars, and through custom and law he is compelled to keep the position to the last degree. This compulsion to keep one's rank has given rise to the existence of committees called anwaltskammern, whose duty it is to keep a strict watch that no lawyer dishonors his calling. These committees have a strict code of punishment, ranging to complete expulsion from office. In this way the lawyers in Germany have a good and honored position. In fact, there is scarcely a country in which the lawyer enjoys more respect and confidence.

Some Famous Echoes.

There is a famous echo on the Rhine between Coblenz and Bingen which repeats a word seventeen times, while in the sepulcher of Metella, the wife of Sulla, in the Roman Campagna, there is an echo which repeats five times in different keys and will also give back with distinctness a hexameter line which requires two and a half seconds to utter. Brewster mentions an echo on the north side of Shipley church, in Sussex, England, which repeats twenty-one syllables.

Not Ladylike.

"What do you think I ought to say to you for coming home so late—and in such a condition?" demands the lady of the house.

"Perish zhe thought!" gracefully replies the courteous husband. "Perish zhe thought! M' dear, surely you would not sh'pose I would ever shink you ought to shay zhe shings I shink you ought to shay!"—Judge.

KIDNEY TROUBLES

Are Overcome By Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills

The kidneys have a very important work to perform in preserving health. All the blood passes through them over and over again and they filter it, removing all the impurities and worn-out muscle and tissue which the blood gathers up, in microscopic particles, in its flow through the body. These impurities are then expelled through the urinary system.

When the kidneys for any reason fail to perform this function, and the impurities are left in the blood, about the most distressing series of ailments which afflict mankind follow. First there is the aching back and a feeling of weariness, and then, as conditions grow worse, comes Rheumatism, Gravel, Diabetes, Gall Stones, Inflammation of the Bladder or the dreaded Bright's Disease.

The man or woman who allows kidney trouble to develop into any of these diseases is doing himself or herself a grave injustice, particularly when a cure can be had so readily. One of the constituents of Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills is a Diuretic, which strengthens and stimulates the kidneys, enabling them to do their work thoroughly and with ease. These Pills also increase the action of the bowels and the pores of the skin, which remove some of the impurities, thus lightening the work of the kidneys.

Mr. Geo. Whitney, of Buffalo, N.Y., says they worked wonders for him. He writes:

"Your Doctor Morse's Indian Root Pills have worked wonders in my case. I suffered for six years from liver trouble and kidney ailment. If I tried one medicine I tried a dozen, but without good results. Your pills were recommended and they cured me after using four boxes."

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills should be taken at the first sign of back-ache, of rheumatism, or of any difficulty in urinating.

FALLING BODIES.

Their Velocity Varies According to the Force of Gravity.

A man falling from a three story building in New Orleans will not fall as fast as he would if he were in New York city. In fact, in hardly any two places will he fall with the same speed. This is because as we go toward the equator the force of gravity gets less and less, and consequently the acceleration of a falling body becomes less, and the force of impact is therefore less.

While it does not make very much difference in the injury to a person falling from a height, it does make a difference in other things. Take a rifle and fire it exactly horizontally, and if the gun is sixteen feet above the ground, say, at New York the bullet fired from such a rifle will strike the ground in exactly one second after it leaves the rifle. If the bullet has a horizontal velocity of 1,000 feet per second it will strike the earth exactly 1,000 feet away. Let us take the same rifle to a place where the force of gravity is not the same as at New York, but a good deal smaller, say two-thirds smaller. We find that if the gun is placed sixteen feet above the ground, as before, and absolutely horizontal the bullet will not fall the sixteen feet in one second, but will take over one and a half seconds to fall, thus enabling the bullet to be in the air during that length of time. Therefore it will strike the ground about 1,600 feet away. Thus it is seen that the range of a rifle is increased as it is taken toward the equator.

Of course there is no place on the earth where the force of gravity is two-thirds smaller than at New York, but there are many places where the difference is considerable enough to affect slightly the range of rifles.—Harper's Weekly.

TURKISH RED TAPE.

Getting the Kinks Out of a Custom House Tangle.

In the far east rules and restrictions may be made to yield to influence with a latent force behind it, as instanced by this serio-comic incident found in Captain A. B. Townshend's book, "A Military Consul in Turkey." A certain highly influential foreigner at Adrianople wanted a Christmas tree and ordered one from Sofia to come by train, but when the tree, an unpretentious little fir about ten feet high, arrived at Adrianople station some one discovered that it was illegal to receive "plants" from abroad.

"Yasak" (it is forbidden), said the custom house.

"Yasak," echoed the sentry on duty. The foreigner said whatever was the equivalent to "rubbish" and demanded the tree.

Here was a nice quandary for the authorities. Evidently it was a most fearful thing to receive a tree from abroad, and yet the consignee was capable of getting some one into very serious trouble if he did not get his tree, and he said he must have it within forty-eight hours.

Some one at the custom house soared above the difficulty. The tree was sent on to Stamboul on the Orient express, an eight hours' journey. It came back to Adrianople by the next train, and the person for whom it was intended received a notice that "a tree from Constantinople" had arrived for him and would at once be handed over to his messenger.

So the wretched little Bulgarian tree had become a Turkish one, brought from Constantinople, and by that means it satisfied officialdom and served its purpose in the end.

Gladiators.

The gladiators were originally male-factors who fought for their lives or captives who fought for freedom. They were first exhibited at the funeral ceremonies of the Romans, 263 B. C., and afterward at festivals about 215 B. C. When Dacia was reduced by Trojan 1,000 gladiators fought at Rome for 123 days in celebration of his triumph. It is said that in the triumphs of Pompey the Great 10,000 fought through a series of many days. These combats were suppressed in the east by the Emperor Constantine about A. D. 325 and in the west by Theodoric in A. D. 500.

A PUZZLING PINE.

Peculiar Tree That Is Something of a Mystery to Botanists.

Upper California is the home of a tree that has puzzled botanists. It is a pine which will grow only near the seacoast. Its growth is slow, and it does not attain to great size.

The strange thing about it is that there are, to all appearances, insurmountable difficulties in the way of the perpetuation of the species. Some specimens of it exist in Kew gardens, in London. They have been carefully examined by competent authorities, and all admit that the tree presents a problem unlike anything elsewhere met with.

This pine produces at regular intervals the usual cones containing seeds; but, strange to say, the cones are so thoroughly protected that the seeds cannot be released. The cones are hard and tightly closed and have strong overlapping scales.

More extraordinary still is the fact that the pine, after producing its almost invulnerable cones, keeps them hanging on its branches year after year. Unless through some peculiar accident the seeds would apparently remain attached to the parent tree forever. Many of the cones on the trees in Kew gardens have been there for years, as is shown by the size of the branches and the formation of the bark.

It has been found that the seed vessels which this tree so powerfully retain are so well protected that it requires a strong knife with the assistance of a heavy hammer to cut the cone into sections. No ordinary conditions of temperature can make a cone open.

The following is the only explanation yet offered that seems to have any degree of plausibility: The species may be perpetuated by fire. One who has studied the tree asserts that nothing but the intense heat of a forest fire could compel the cones to release their seeds. It has been found that under the influence of intense heat they crack open and the seeds fall out uninjured.

A WOMAN'S HAT.

There's a Large Pot of Trouble Brewing For One Milliner.

Mr. Standish was mad when he went into the millinery establishment, and the longer he stayed the madder he got. Presently he walked over to a stunning black creation that hung on a peg near the window and said:

"This is the hat I want to see you about."

The proprietor came forward.

"What can I do for you?" he asked.

"You can fix this hat over the way my wife asked you to," said Standish explosively. "She wants the feather put on the other side, that bow moved to the front, and she wants the rim to bulge a little more over the temples."

Seeing a guilty flush creep over the proprietor's face, Standish went on with increased heat:

"She says you have refused to make any alterations on the ground that a stitch added to or subtracted from the hat is bound to ruin it, but I tell you that's all nonsense. My wife knows how she wants her hat to look, and if she can't stand up for her rights I'll do it for her. She is coming around this afternoon to try the hat on again. If it isn't ready by that time there will be no end of a row."

The proprietor twirled the black hat on his forefinger and looked from it to the head saleswoman lugubriously.

"I remember," he said, "that the lady

WORLD'S DEBT TO CANADA

A Wonderful Achievement

Discovery of "Fruit-a-tives" has meant health for all

Canada's fame does not rest solely on her furs and wheat fields. Her rise in the esteem of the world is not due to her Cobalt mines. It is the work of her great men that has made her great. A graduate of McGill University has won lasting renown for his original researches in the realms of Physics.

Everyone knows that fruit is wholesome, when eaten judiciously. Physicians generally recognize the fact that fruit juices have a beneficial effect on the various organs of the body.

It remained for a Canadian physician to discover a process whereby the medicinal action of fruit could be so increased as to make the intensified juices a wonderful cure.

"Fruit-a-tives" is this combination of fruit juices and tonics. Since its introduction to the public, "Fruit-a-tives" has met with a success accorded to no other medicine in the world. The reason is plain. "Fruit-a-tives" is the one remedy that is actually made of fruit, and is the only remedy that naturally cures Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion, Headaches, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Backache, Kidney and Skin Troubles. At all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c., or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

WORRY DOES KILL.

It Slowly but Surely Destroys the Cells of the Brain.

Modern science has brought to light nothing more curiously interesting than that worry will kill. More remarkable still, it has been able to determine just how worry does kill.

It is believed by many scientists who have followed carefully the growth of the science of brain diseases that scores of the deaths set down to their causes are due to worry and that alone. The theory is a simple one, so simple that any one can readily understand it.

Briefly put, it amounts to this: Worry injures beyond repair certain cells of the brain, and the brain being the nutritive center of the body, the other organs become gradually injured, and when some diseases of these organs or a combination of them arises death finally ensues.

Thus worry kills. Insidiously, like many other diseases, it creeps upon the brain in the form of a single, constant, never lost idea, and as a dropping of water over a period of years will wear a groove in the stone, so does worry gradually, imperceptibly and no less surely destroy the brain cells that lead all the rest, which are, so to speak, the commanding officers of mental power, health and motion.

Worry, to make the theory still stronger, is an irritant at certain points, which produces little harm if it comes at intervals or irregularly. Occasional worryment the brain can cope with, but the iteration and the reiteration of one idea of a disquieting sort the cells of the brain are not proof against.

It is as if the skull were laid bare and the surface of the brain struck lightly with a hammer every few seconds with mechanical precision, with never a sign of a stop or the failure of a stroke. Just in this way does the annoying idea, the maddening thought that will not be done away with strike

Prize List of the Winter Fair.

$16,000 in Prizes.

In the revision of the prize list for the coming Winter Fair the Executive Committee made many additions with a view to encouraging exhibitors to bring out still better exhibits and so to make the Winter Fair of 1910 greater in educational value and attractiveness than any of its predecessors.

On looking through the new prize list and beginning with the horse department it will be noticed that two new sections have been added to the class for Canadian-bred Clydesdale and Shires; one section is for stallion foaled in 1910 and the other for mare foaled in 1910; the prizes in each section are—1st, $15; 2nd, $12; 3rd, $8; 4th, $5. A section is added for Shire mares foaled in 1910; on or after Jan. 1st, 1909, with prizes of—1st, $15; 2nd, $10; 3rd, $5. There are now two sections for Standard-bred mares instead of one, they are for mares foaled previous to Jan. 1st 1908, with prizes of—1st, $25; 2nd, $15; 3rd, $10, and for mares foaled on or after Jan. 1st, 1908, with prizes of—1st $20; 2nd, $15; 3rd, $5. Additions have been made to the Pony class for Shetland Pony stallion, any age, 1st, $20; 2nd, $10; 3rd, $5. and Shetland Pony mare, any age, 1st, $15; 2nd, $10; 3rd, $5. The Championship class includes new sections for Hackney mare, any age, and for Standard-bred mare, any age. Grand Champion awards will be made for the best Clydesdale stallion and for the best Clydesdale mare. Winners of Championship prizes will receive special ribbons instead of cash prizes.

Important changes have been made in the Beef Cattle Department. Formerly Herefords and Aberdeen-Angus competed together as also did Galloways and Devons. The latter breeds has been dropped from the list and the remaining three breed each has its own class. The sections are the same as last year, and the Fair Board gives $128.00 in prizes to each class. The prizes for Herefords are made very attractive by the addition of $220.00 from the American and Canadian Hereford Breeders' Associations. The Canadian Hereford Breeders' Association is also prepared to add 50 per cent. to all the prizes won by animals sired by Hereford bulls in the open class for Grades and Crosses. The heifer prizes for beef Shorthorns have been increased by $7 in each of the three sections.

The National Lincoln Sheep Breeders' Association has doubled the amount of special prizes for Lincoln sheep, bringing the total up to $100.00.

The most noticeable change in the Dairy cattle Department is the increased grant made by the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada. They have added $375.00 to the regular prizes for Holsteins so that exhibitors of this breed will now compete for $510.00.

The Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association has also increased their grant and have added specials of $50 in each of the three sections if animals making the highest scores are recorded in their Herd Book.

The Counties of Wellington, Halton, Brant, Norfolk and Ontario are offering special prizes in the different live stock departments to amateur exhibitors resident of their respective counties.

Prospective exhibitors are reminded that the dates of the Fair are December 5th to 9th, 1910. The prize lists are now ready for distribution and may be had free on application to A. P. Westervelt, Secretary, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

Children Cry

HER WEIGHT INCREASED FROM 100 TO 140 POUNDS.

Wonderful Praise Accorded Peruna the Household Remedy

Mrs. Maria Goertz, Orienta, Oklahoma, writes:

"My husband, children and myself have used your medicines, and we always keep them in the house in case of necessity. I was restored to health by this medicine, and Dr. Hartman's invaluable advice and books. People ask about me from different places, and are surprised that I can do all of my housework alone, and that I was cured by the doctor of chronic catarrh. My husband was cured of asthma, my daughter of earache and catarrh of the stomach, and my son of catarrh of the throat. When I was sick I weighed 100 pounds; now I weigh 140.

"I have regained my health again, and I cannot thank you enough for your advice. May God give you a long life and bless your work."

JUVENILE BLOCKHEADS.

Stupid Boys Who Developed Into World Famous Men.

There is quite a long record of famous men who in their boyhood were regarded as fools and dullards. Sir Walter Scott was called a "blockhead" by his mother. The mother of Brinsley Sheridan despaired of teaching him the simplest elements. Her death aroused him to activity and he became a scholar, philosopher, poet, wit, statesman and orator. Dean Swift, the keenest wit of his age, was "plucked" at Dublin university. Newton, Shakespeare, Michelangelo and Oliver Goldsmith all come in the category.

One day a slatternly woman rushed out of a little grocer's shop gripping an unkempt boy by the ear, and as she pulled him along she shouted to her neighbor:

"My heart is fairly broke with that brat, Tammy, and he is so stupid he can learn nothin'!"

That stupid brat Tammy became the poet Tom Moore.

In a country schoolhouse in Queen's county, Ireland, a boy with a blunt knife cut in the desk "A. W." the initials of his name. The teacher, who caught him in the act, cried out:

"Stupid, you are better at cutting letters and destroying desks than you are at learning your lessons!"

That boy was Arthur Wellesley, known to fame as the Duke of Wellington, hero of Waterloo.

In the middle years of the last century, in St. Malachy's college, Belfast, a boy carved the letters "C. R." in the wood. The French professor reported him and declared that he "was besides a worthless boy, who would never amount to anything."

"I will amount to more than you!" returned the youth.

He did, for he became lord chancellor of England—Lord Russell of Kilowen.—London Graphic.

afternoon to try the hat on again. If it isn't ready by that time there will be no end of a row."

The proprietor twirled the black hat on his forefinger and looked from it to the head saleswoman lugubriously.

"I remember," he said, "that the lady who ordered that hat did bring it back yesterday to be remodeled. Perhaps it will be possible to make the alterations suggested after all."

The manager's humility made Standish feel very proud of himself.

"That's the only way to deal with those fellows," he said when he left the shop. "You've got to meet them on their own level. It takes a man to do that. No wonder women get cheated out of their very eyeteeth. They haven't got sand enough to say the things that have to be said to secure their rights."

Throughout the day Standish continued to revel in self congratulations, and he actually went home half an hour ahead of time to see if his wife's hat had been metamorphosed into the thing of beauty he had suggested.

"Well," said he jubbantly, "was the hat all right?"

"All right?" said Mrs. Standish. "They hadn't even touched it. How could you expect it to be all right when you didn't stop in to see about it?"

"But I did stop," protested Standish. "I saw everybody about the place and laid the whole establishment out in great shape. Here's their card to prove I was there. I picked it up as I was passing out."

Mrs. Standish took up the card and read the name aloud.

"O-o-o-h!" she cried. "Is that where you went? Why, you got into the wrong place. What on earth will that manager think? He must think you are crazy."

"I don't care if he does," said Standish limply, "but I would like to know what the owner of that black hat will say when she sees it made over according to my directions."

Economical.

A good story is related of an English theatrical manager who by thrift and hard work had amassed a fortune. Previous to the production of one play the stage carpenters had to repair a trap, and the head carpenter went to the manager and informed him that it could not be done in the dark.

"Well, lad, thee won't have t' gas," answered the manager. "Here, tak' this and buy a candle."

And he handed him a halfpenny.

The carpenter pleaded that they wanted two in order to get sufficient light.

"How long will t' job tak' thee?" asked the manager.

"About ten minutes," was the reply.

"Then cut t' candle in two," was the answer. "Thee won't have any more money."

Her Protection.

"Why don't you marry, too?" he asked her, apropos of the marriage of her friend.

"I can't," she answered, "without committing bigamy. I haven't my divorce yet, you know. It's probably a good thing, a great protection. I might have married some good for nothing again if I had had it. I am so unfortunate in my selections."

"True," he said. "You might have married me."

THE SECRET OF HER POWER;

Or, A TRUTH NEVER OLD.

"Didn't I tell you?" whispers the Babe, climbing up behind Blanford.

"Yes, you did," returned Blanford, "and you were quite right; but it is abominably bad manners to whisper, my dear Cecil."

The Babe subsides into silence with hot cheeks; when anybody calls him Cecil he is conscious that he has committed some flagrant offense.

"Those brats are always bothering you, princess," says their father.

"They are very kind to me," replies Xenia Sabaroff in English which has absolutely no foreign accent. "They make me feel at home! What a charming place this is! I like it better than your castle, what is its name, where I had the pleasure to visit you at Easter?"

"Orme. Oh, that's beastly — a regular barn-obliged to go there just for show, you know."

"Orme was built by Inigo Jones and the ingratitude to fortune of its owner is a constant temptation to Providence to deal in thunderbolts or have matches left about by housemaids," says Blanford.

"I think Lord Usk has not a contented mind," says Mme. Sabaroff, amused.

"Contented! By Jove, who should be, when England's going to the dogs as fast as she can!"

"In every period of your history," says the princess, "your country is always described as going headlong to ruin, and yet she has not gone there yet, and she has not done ill."

"Our constitution is established on a mere equipoise, with dark precipices, and deep water all around it." So said Burke," replies Blanford. "At the present moment everybody has forgotten the delicacy of this nice equipoise, and one day or other it will lose its balance, and topple over into the deep waters and be engulfed. Myself, I confess I do not think that time is far distant."

"I hope it is: I am very much attached to England," replies the Princess Xenia, gravely, "and to naughty English boys," she adds, passing her hand over the shining locks of the Babe.

"She must be in love with an Englishman," thinks Blanford, with the one-sided construction which a man is always ready to place on the words of a woman. "Must we go indoors?" he asks, regretfully, as she is moving toward the house. "It is so pleasant

"That is true, I think," says the Princess Xenia, with her serious smile.

"If they are beginning to agree with one another I shall be de trop," thinks Usk, who is very good-natured to his guests, and popular enough with women not to be resigned to play what is vulgarly termed "second fiddle" (though why an expression borrowed from the orchestra should be vulgar it were hard to say). So he goes a few paces off to speak to a gardener; and by degrees away toward the house, leaving Blanford and Mme. Sabaroff to themselves in the green yew-helmet arbor.

Blanford is in love with his subject and does not abandon it.

"It is absurd," he continues, "the way in which children are made to leave all scholarship by its association with their own pains and subjection. A child is made as a punishment to learn by rote fifty lines of Virgil. Good heavens! It ought rather to be as a reward that he should be allowed to open Virgil. To walk in all those delicious paths of thought should be the highest pleasure that he could be brought to know. To listen to the music of the poets should be at once his privilege and his recompense. To be deprived of books should be, on the contrary, his cruellest chastisement!"

"He would be a very exceptional child, surely," says Mme. Sabaroff.

"I was not an exceptional child," he answers, "but that is how I was brought up and how I felt."

"You had an exceptional training then?"

"It ought not to be exceptional; that is just the mischief. Up to the time I was seventeen I was brought up at my own place (by my father's directions, in his will) by a most true and reverent scholar, whom I loved as Burke loved Shackleton. He died, God rest his soul, but the good he left behind him lives after him; whatever grains of sense I have shown, and whatever follies I have avoided both what I am and what I am not, are due to him, and it is to him that I owe the love of study which has been the greatest consolation and the purest pleasure of my life. That is why I pity so profoundly those poor Rochford children, and the tens of thousands like them, who are being educated by the commonplace, flavorless, cramming system which people call education. It may be education; it is not culture. What will the Babe always associate with his La-

a slight sigh, which gave him the impression that, though no doubt she had many houses, she had no home. "Where is your place that you spoke of just now—the place where you learned to love Horace?"

Blanford is always pleased to speak of St. Hubert's Lea. He has a great love for it and for the traditions of his race, which make many people accuse him of great family pride; though, as has been well said apropos of a greater man than Blanford, it is rather than sentiment which the Romans defined as piety. When he talks of his old home he grows eloquent, unreserved, cordial, and he describes with an artist's touch its antiquities, its landscapes, and its old-world and sylvan charms.

"It must be charming to care for any place so much as that," says his companion, after hearing him with interest.

"I think one cares more for places than for people," he replies.

"Sometimes one cares for neither," says Xenia Sabaroff, with a tone which in a less lovely woman would have been morose.

"One must suffice very thoroughly to one's self in such a case!"

"Oh, not necessarily."

At that moment there is a little bustle under a very big cedar near at hand; servants are bringing out folding-tables, folding-chairs, a silver camp kettle, cakes, fruit cream, liquors, sandwiches, wines all those items of an afternoon tea on which Blanford has animated with so much disgust in the library an hour before. Lady Usk has chosen to take these murderous compounds out of doors in the west garden. She herself comes out of the house with a train of her guests around her.

"Adieu to rational conversation," says Blanford, as he rises with regret from his seat under the evergreen helmet.

Xenia Sabaroff is pleased at the expression. She is too handsome for men often to speak to her rationally; they usually plunge headlong into attempts at homage and flattery, of which she is nauseated.

DEATH AFTER A SCRATCH.

Morris Quatzam, an eleven-year-old Windsor boy, fell off his bicycle and scratched his wrist. He thought nothing of the injury, but blood poison set in and he is dead.

Such incidents as these—by no means infrequent—ought to make people realize the danger that may lie even in the smallest flesh wound.

Take a simple illustration. When a knife, a rusty needle, a splinter of dirty wood, a barbed wire fence, or a thorn, scratches the hand, the latter is inoculated with germs, of which the air about us is full. Directly these germs are introduced through the breach in the skin, a battle royal ensues between them, and certain organisms in our blood.

The way to avoid serious results is to cleanse the wound and apply Zam-Buk. Zam-Buk is a powerful, yet painless germ-killer, and when applied to the broken skin is absorbed into the tissue, instantly destroying the germs that spread disease and inflammation.

Zam-Buk must not be confused with ordinary ointments. Zam-Buk is a unique preparation, possessing antiseptic, soothing and healing qualities that are not to be found together in any other preparation.

ST. VITUS DANCE

A Striking Example of Its Cure by the Tonic Treatment.

St. Vitus dance is the commonest form of nervous trouble which afflicts children, because of the great demands made on the body by growth and development, and there is the added strain caused by study. It is when these demands become so great that they impoverish the blood, and the nerves fail to receive their full supply of nourishment, that the nervous debility which leads to St. Vitus dance.

The remarkable success of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in curing St. Vitus dance should lead parents to give their children this great blood-building medicine at the first signs of the approach of the disease. Restlessness and irritability are all symptoms which early show that the blood and nerves are failing to meet the demands made upon them. Mrs. A. Winters, Virden, Man., says: "When my little girl was six years old she was attacked with scarlatina, which was followed by St. Vitus dance. Her limbs would jerk and twitch. Her speech became affected, and at last she became so bad that she could scarcely walk, and we hardly dared trust her alone. She was under the care of a doctor, but in spite of this was steadily growing worse, and we feared that we would lose her. As Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had cured her older sister of anaemia I decided to try them again. After the use of a few boxes, to our great joy, we found they were helping her, and in the course of a few weeks more her power of speech fully returned, and she could walk and go about as well as any child, and she has been well and healthy since. When illness comes to any one of our family now, we never call in a doctor, but simply use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and they never disappoint us."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BREAD.

Health Bread.—Have your tea kettle boiling. Into your breadpan put a cup of rolled oats. Pour over it three cups boiling water, one-half cup molasses, one tablespoon lard, or butter, one tablespoon salt; let cool, when blood warm add one yeastcake which has been dissolved in cold water. Add bread flour until firm and can be kneaded. Let rise over night, make into two loaves, and bake one hour and twenty minutes.

Quick Breadmaking. — Dissolve two cakes of compressed yeast in a little lukewarm water. Into a crock pour one pint of sweet milk and add one pint of freshly boiled water, and one tablespoon of salt. Into this stir enough flour to make a soft batter and if it is cool enough to admit of holding the finger in it, add the dissolved yeast, beat well, and continue to add more flour till it is pretty stiff. Now turn it out on to a floured board and knead till smooth, adding necessary flour gradually. Put into a bread bowl that has been greased and set in a warm place to rise.

passing her hand over the shining locks of the Babe.

"She must be in love with an Englishman," thinks Blanford, with the one-sided construction which a man is always ready to place on the words of a woman. "Must we go indoors?" he asks, regretfully, as she is moving toward the house. "It is so pleasant in these quaint, green arbors. To be under a roof on such a summer afternoon as this is to fly in the face of a merciful Creator with greater ingratitude than Usk's ingratitude to Inigo Jones."

"But I have scarcely seen my hostess," says Mme. Sabaroff; nevertheless she resigns herself to a seat in the yew-tree cut like a helmet.

"Why do you let those innocents be tortured, George?" asks Blanford.

"Books should, like business, entertain the day," replies Usk; "so you said at least just now. Their governesses are of the same opinion."

"That is not the way to make them love books, to shut them up against their wills on a summer afternoon."

"How will you educate your children when you have 'em, then?"

"He always gets out of any impersonal argument by putting some personal question," complains Blanford to Mme. Sabaroff.

"It is a common device, but always an unworthy one. Because a system is very bad it does not follow that I alone of all men must be prepared with a better one. I think if I had children I would not have them taught in that way at all. I should get the wisest old man I could find, a Samuel Johnson touched with a John Ruskin, and should tell him to make learning delightful to them, and associated, as far as our detestable climate would allow, with open-air studies in cowslip meadows and under hawthorn hedges. If I had only read dear Horace at school, should I ever have loved him as I do? No; my old tutor taught me to feel all the delight and the sweet savor of him, roaming in the oak woods of my own old place."

"I am devoutly thankful," says Blanford, "that Dorothy, among her caprices, had never had the idea you have, for Dr. Johnson double with a Ruskin, to correct my quotations, abuse my architecture and make prigs of the children."

"Prigs!" exclaims Blanford. "Prigs! When did ever real scholarship and love of nature make anything approaching to a prig? Science and classrooms make prigs, not Latin verse and cowslip meadows."

solution and the purest pleasure of my life. That is why I pity so profoundly those poor Rochfort children, and the tens of thousands like them, who are being educated by the commonplace, flavorless, cramming system which people call education. It may be education; it is not culture. What will the Babe always associate with his Latin themes. Four walls, hated books, inky, aching fingers, and a headache. Whereas I never see a Latin line in a newspaper, be it ever so hackneyed, without pleasure, as at the face of an old friend, and whenever I repeat to myself the words I always smell the cowslips and the lilac and the hawthorn of the spring mornings when I was a boy."

Xenia Sabaroff looked at him with some little wonder and more approval.

"My dear lord," she says, seriously, "I think in your enthusiasm you forget one thing, that there is ground on which good seed falls and brings forth flowers and fruit, and there is other ground on which the same seed, be it strewn ever so thickly, lies always barren. Without underrating the influence of your tutor, I must believe that had you been educated at an English public school, or even in a French lycee, you would still have become a scholar, still have loved your books."

"Alas, Madam," says Blanford, with a sigh. "Perhaps I have only been what Matthew Arnold calls 'a foiled circuitous wanderer' in the orbit of life."

"I imagine that you have not very often been foiled," replies the lady, with a smile, "and wandering has a great deal to be said in its favor, especially for a man. Women are happiest, perhaps, at anchor."

"Women used to be; not our women. I have bored you too much with myself and my opinions."

"No, you interest me," says his companion, with a serious serenity which deprives the words of all sound of flattery or encouragement. "I have long admired your writings," she adds, and Blanford colors a little with gratification. The same kind of phrase is said to him on an average five hundred times a year, and his usual emotion is either ennui or irritation. The admiration of fools is folly, and humiliates him. But the admiration of as lovely a woman as Xenia Sabaroff would lay a flatteringunction to the soul of any man, even if she were absolutely mindless; and she gives him the impression that she has a good deal of mind, and one out of the common order.

"My writings have no other merit," he says, after the expression of the sense of the honor she does him, "than being absolutely the chronicle of what I have seen and what I have thought; and I think they are expressed in tolerably pure English, though that is claiming a great deal in these times, for since John Newman laid down the pen there is scarcely a living Briton who can write his own tongue with eloquence and purity."

"I think it must be very nice to leave off wandering if one has a home," replies Mme. Sabaroff, with These Pills Cure Rheumatism.—To the many who suffer from rheumatism a trial of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills is recommended. They have pronounced action upon the liver and kidneys and by regulating the action of these organs act as an alternative in preventing the admixture of uric acid and blood that causes this painful disorder. They must be taken according to directions and used steadily and they will speedily give evidence of their beneficial effects.

SALAD

Boiled Salad Dressing.—Two level tablespoonfuls of butter, two level tablespoonfuls of flour, two level teaspoonfuls of sugar, one level teaspoonful of salt, one level teaspoonful of mustard, a few grains of cayenne, one cupful of milk, one-half cupful of hot vinegar, yolks of two eggs. Make a white sauce of dry ingredients, butter and milk. To make white sauce put butter in a saucepan, stir until melted and bubbling, add flour mixed with seasonings and stir until thoroughly blended. Pour on the milk gradually until well mixed. When sauce is smooth add hot vinegar. When thickened pour on to beaten yolks, then return to the stove and cook a few minutes. Be careful not to cook the eggs too much. This makes one pint, and if kept on the ice in a sealed Mason jar it will keep a week. Add a little cream to thin the dressing when you want to use it.

Scrubbing brushes, hair brushes, and, indeed, all household brushes, should be rested on the bristles to dry; otherwise the water will destroy the brush.

A glazier's knife will be found an excellent thing with which to scrape and clean the bottoms of pans and kettles. This need only be tried to prove its value.

a soft batter and if it is cool enough to admit of holding the finger in it, add the dissolved yeast, beat well, and continue to add more flour till it is pretty stiff. Now turn it out on to a floured board and knead till smooth, adding necessary flour gradually. Put into a bread bowl that has been greased and set in a warm place to rise. When it has doubled its original size it is ready to mold into loaves and rise again before baking. Bake one hour.

Brown Bread.—Two cupfuls Graham flour, one cupful wheat flour, one-quarter cupful sugar (brown or white), one-half cupful molasses, one small teaspoonful salt, two cupfuls buttermilk, one level teaspoonful soda dissolved in a little boiling water. Put into greased covered quart lard pails and bake in a moderate oven for two hours. By putting ingredients together as given this brown bread never fails and is so easily made compared to the old way of steaming first and then baking.

Scotch Shortbread.—One pound of flour, one-half pound of butter, one-fourth pound moist brown sugar. Sift flour into mixing bowl, roll sugar free from lumps, rub sugar and butter through flour, turn out on board and knead like bread till it sticks together in one lump; roll three-fourths of an inch thick; mark in small diamond shaped squares cut with a knife; put on baking tin and bake about twenty minutes in a moderate oven.

Bread Hint.—(To be made up in the evening and to raise over night). Take three quarts of flour, sift into a large pan or bowl and make a good sized cavity in the center of the flour, crumble one cake of compressed yeast, then add one-half teacupful of sugar, one small tablespoonful of salt, one good tablespoonful of lard; then pour in two and one-half pints of lukewarm water; mix well until moderately stiff and smooth; then put into a greased vessel that is as near airtight as possible, let raise over night in a warm place so as not to chill; in the morning make into loaves about one and one-quarter pounds each; let raise until loaves are as high as pans, then bake in a moderately hot oven.

Never Fail Bread.—At noon soak one yeast cake in half glass warm water. Hash fine two potatoes and about one quart potato water, and stir in while boiling hot one cup flour. Let stand in warm place until next morning, then add one tablespoon lard, one of salt, and one of sugar and one pint of warm water and mix stiff. Let rise and punch down. Let rise again and put in pans.

CAKE.

Oatmeal Cookies Help.—Almost every one is fond of oatmeal cookies, but there is one thing disliked by many, that is the uncooked taste that the oatmeal has if not ground. I have learned by experience that by using the coarsest knife on your food chopper and grinding the oatmeal through it improves the cookies very much. This does not pulverize the oatmeal, but makes the grains finer and distributes the flavor more evenly, and they never have that uncooked taste. Below is my favorite recipe: One cup shortening, half lard and half butter; one large cupful C. sugar creamed with butter, two eggs well beaten, nine tablespoonfuls sour milk, one scant teaspoonful soda dissolved in milk, one teaspoonful cinnamon, half teaspoonful nutmeg, pinch of salt; one-half cupful chopped nut meats; one cupful chopped raisins, one small teaspoonful baking powder sifted with two cups flour. Add one cup ground oatmeal last. I bake these in muffin tins, but can be baked as drop cookies if preferred.

M. W. D.
Hot Water Cake.—Four eggs separate them, beat yolks light, gradually stirring in two cupfuls of granulated sugar. Beat well together, add one cupful of boiling water, two cupfuls of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder. Beat whites to a froth and flavor. This makes a good, large, three layer cake. Bake slowly.

Orange Cake.—One cup sugar, three tablespoonfuls butter, two eggs, half cup orange juice, grated rind of one orange, one and one-half cups flour, one and one-half teaspoonfuls baking powder. Cream butter, add sugar, beat; add eggs unbeaten; beat thoroughly; add orange juice, then the flour sifted with the baking powder. Bake in gem pans and roll in powdered sugar while warm.

Kisses.—The secret of good kisses lies in the beating. Beat the whites of two eggs to a stiff froth, then add two cupfuls of granulated sugar and one teaspoonful of vinegar. Beat well for twenty minutes. Turn your baking pan upside down and cover with oiled paper. Drop the mixture in teaspoonfuls on the pan. In baking they swell quite a bit. Do not turn the light on the oven until they are in. Then bake slowly twenty-five minutes. This quantity makes two dozen.

SORRY.

To the leader of a band, jocularly spoken of in the locality as "the worst in seven different counties," there once came a man with a request that the band play at a cousin's funeral. "Is it a military funeral?" asked the leader. "Not at all," was the reply. "My cousin was no military man; in fact, he was never interested in matters military. Nevertheless, it was his express wish that your band should play at his funeral." The leader was surprised and flattered. "Is that so?" he asked. "Yes," responded the other. "He said that he wanted everybody in the place to be sorry that he died."

HUNDREDS PERISH BY FIRE

Calamity That Reaches the Proportions of an International Disaster.

A despatch from Rainy River, Ont., says: The most disastrous forest fires in the history of Northern Minnesota and Western Ontario have been ravaging the country the past three days. The towns of Spooner and Beaudette, on the American side are heaps of ashes. When Spooner and Beaudette caught fire the Canadian Northern Railway rushed a train of fifty box cars to help the residents get away. They were brought to this place on Saturday night. The flames were raging fiercely through the timber and already millions of dollars of damage has been done. The Shevlin-Matthieu Lumber Co. lost all their buildings and 150,000,000 feet of lumber. The Rat Portage Lumber Co. also lost all their plant with 60,000,000 feet.

The Rainy River Co. suffered the same fate and lost 35,000,000 feet of lumber. There are 1,000 people homeless here. The villages of Sleemans, Pitt, Williams and Swift have also been destroyed.

While a wind is sweeping a sea of fire eastward on the south side of the Rainy River at a velocity of 50 miles an hour, the great body of flames passed this section, revealing a calamity that already reaches the proportion of an international disaster. Sixty blackened corpses have been found in the path of the flames and a vast area is yet to be searched for dead, while the towns of Spooner, Beaudette and Pitt have been totally destroyed, with a property loss that cannot be intelligently calculated at present. With the exception of the destruction of the mills and stock of the Rat Portage Lumber Co. near Rainy River, following the course of the flames which touched a corner of the town, the principal loss is confined to the south side of the river and chiefly sustained along the American border.

Railroad and wire connection with the scene of the great disaster in the West is cut off by a burned district from Warroad, Minn., on the Canadian Northern Railroad, a distance of forty miles, through which the last trains passed on Saturday night at imminent peril of the lives of the crew. The road is open to the south and east, however, and relief is being afforded from Fort William. Those fires have been smouldering in that district for months, and were started anew by the terrific wind which began to blow two days ago. The wind increased in velocity with the heat until a wave of flame over a hundred feet high, and as long, leaped barriers half a mile wide in many directions. It was this situation that caused so many to perish on the railway track. They sought this opening in the bush, but were burned to cinders by the heat wave leaping this barrier of some three hundred yards along the clearing of the railway tracks.

A special despatch from War-road, Minn., says: The fire zone covers an area 85 miles long and 30 miles wide. It stretches along the international boundary and the Canadian Northern Railway from Gravel Pit Spur, west on Warroad, to Stratton, the fourth station east of Rainy River. Another despatch tells that over seventy bodies have been found, while the number of dead will probably reach three hundred.

FEW SETTLERS TURNING UP.

Beaudette, Minn., Oct. 10.—Fifty-three persons are known to be dead here as a result of the forest fires and the bodies of two families of nine and five members respectively were brought in here to-day. Two cars of provisions have arrived and a relief committee has been organized. The towns of Roosevelt and Williams are still in danger, but Warroad is safe. There is need of provisions, clothes and money. As many as 1,000 refugees have been taken south. It is estimated here that the dead may reach 200. Great alarm is felt here because of the few settlers arriving from the burned area south of Beaudette.

TIMBER LOSS $100,000,000.

Warroad, Minn., Oct. 10.—A. K. Stauning, publisher of The Warroad Plain Dealer, says that he is sure the number of dead will be at least four hundred. He has been in close touch with the situation, and is considered an authority. He places the estimate of the timber loss at $100,000,000.

BUSH FIRES AFFECT KENORA.

Kenora, Oct. 10.—Although there are no forest fires in the immediate vicinity of Kenora, the sky is densely overcast with smoke blown up the Lake of the Woods from the stricken district around Rainy River. There have been some bush fires on the islands about fifteen miles south of here. Bush and prairie fires are raging along the Canadian Pacific Railway fifty to eighty miles west, consuming hay, cordwood and other property. Freight trains yesterday removed cars from sidings to places of safety.

AN APPEAL FOR AID.

Winnipeg, Oct. 10.—The City Council to-night received an appeal from Beaudette, Minn., for tents, clothes and food for the destitute, and an official was ordered to depart at once for the scene with a large supply.

BACKACHE.

Constant pain in the back is a symptom found in many physical disorders. When it is an indication, as it may be, of some very serious trouble, such as tuberculosis of the spine, or malignant disease, or the beginning of locomotor ataxia, the diagnosis will not remain doubtful very long, for many other symptoms will occur which, taken in conjunction with the pain in the back, will make the case clear. It is not of these great and serious disorders that we write here, but rather of that irritating, persistent, nagging pain from which some persons suffer year in and year out, with no discoverable cause—a "toothache in the back," as it has been described.

In a case of this kind there should always be a thorough examination by a competent physician, in order to determine whether any internal displacement is at the root of the trouble, otherwise the backache will certainly persist, if there is displacement, until the dislodged kidney, or other pelvic organ in fault, has been put where it belongs. The past history of the sufferer must be learned. Has there been, perhaps long before, any strain or sprain or bad jar of the entire bodily frame? Many of these cases of obscure spinal misery start from accidents; so many that the phrase "railway spine" has been incorporated into medical phraseology. It is easy to see that physical comfort must necessarily depend largely upon the integrity of the spinal system, with its wonderful radiation of nerves and ligaments, and that a bad fall or jar of that portion of the body may easily result in lifelong trouble. The unforgivable practical joke of pulling the chair away from a person about to sit down has been known to make a life cripple.

GUARDING AGAINST CHOLERA

Meeting of Steamship Passenger Managers at Montreal

A despatch from Montreal says: The Atlantic steamship lines are preparing for the worst that can possibly come, so far as the health of their westbound passengers is concerned. At a meeting of the passenger managers of the various lines, held in the office of Mr. Anable of the C. P. R. Atlantic lines, it was decided that the Government should be asked to better equip their quarantine stations, and in every way possible prepare for an outbreak which might occur. "No steamship man looks for cholera to visit Canada or the ships in the North Atlantic trade, but in times of peace we have to prepare for war," the Manager of one of the transatlantic lines said on Wednesday.

The Thomson Line, with their Mediterranean service, are interested in the progress of the plague now raging in Naples, for, while none of their ships dock at Naples, the trouble is so general that they do not know at what time their trade may be interfered with. The Thomson people have several ships to come from Mediterranean ports during the next month or two, but their business is chiefly freight-carrying.

QUEBEC BRIDGE TENDERS

Germany, the United States and England Send One Each--Two From Canada.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Only four countries were able to produce firms big enough to undertake the building of the Quebec bridge, and three of these countries produced only one such firm each. The tenders for the superstructure of the bridge with its eighteen hundred foot cantilever span were opened on Wednesday by Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways.
The firms which put in tenders were:—
The Maschinenfabrik Augsburg-nurnberg, Germany.
Pennsylvania Steel Company of Philadelphia.

The British Empire Bridge Company of Montreal.
The Darlington, Manchester & Cleveland, England, Bridge Companies combine in one tender.
The St. Lawrence Bridge Company, which is a combination of the Canadian Bridge Company of Walkerville and the Lachine Bridge Company of Montreal.
It will take some time to figure out the tenders, as they are made in detail on the various shapes which enter into the construction of the bridge. The tenders will be turned over to the Commission, and they will estimate the amount of each and decide which is the lowest.

SEPTEMBER FRUIT REPORT

Crop of Apples Generally Uneven--Good Results of Spraying.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The report of the Fruit Division of the Department of Agriculture for September says that the quality of the apple crop, speaking generally, is very uneven, due probably to the difference in the treatment of the orchards. In most cases where the trees have been properly looked after, a good crop of clean fruit is the result. Early apples were light in southern Ontario, with Fall apples better and the Winter varieties scarce. The orchards of the Norfolk Fruit Growers' Association are an exception, as, having been well cultivated and sprayed for years, they have a medium to full crop. Western Ontario is almost without Winter apples, the north shore of Lake Ontario and the Georgian Bay district has a light to medium crop, while in eastern Ontario the crop will be very light. New Brunswick has not enough apples for home consumption, and in the Annapolis Valley the crop is light and the quality poor. Prince Edward Island has the poorest crop in years, even the crab apples being almost a failure.

the spinal system, with its wonderful radiation of nerves and ligaments, and that a bad fall or jar of that portion of the body may easily result in lifelong trouble. The unforgivable practical joke of pulling the chair away from a person about to sit down has been known to make a life cripple.
If, after careful examination, there does not appear to be any serious organic trouble to cause the backache, then the best course open to the sufferer is to settle down patiently to the fact that he has a weak back, which it is his duty to nurse and cure. The spine can be favored in the same way that any other part of the body can be favored. Rest first, and in capital letters. That back must have no needless work, and if it starts to ache, it must be understood that too much has been asked of it. Give it as many hours a day in the recumbent position as it demands, and start to strengthen it very slowly and with great caution.
The strengthening process may take a long time. Massage, electricity, cold douching of the spinal column, and the wearing of a well-made brace are all helps in the treatment, together with strict attention to the general health; for with the strengthening of the whole system, the weak spine, too, will grow strong.—Youth's Companion.

A VILLAGE DESTROYED.
Fire Wipes Graceton, Minnesota, Off the Map.
A despatch from Winnipeg says: The little town of Graceton, Minn., 140 miles east of Winnipeg, on the Canadian Northern line to Port Arthur, was wiped off the map by fire on Tuesday after a fierce fight of over twenty-four hours by the inhabitants. When all hope of saving the town had been abandoned the refugees were taken away on a special train which had hurried to the scene. The wires are still down, and the only information is that brought by passengers on the incoming trains. So far as known no lives were lost, although there are rumors that a teacher and one child are missing from a school which was burned. The village consisted of about a dozen stores and dwellings and the Canadian Northern station.

HUNDREDS ARE DROWNED.
Sudden Overflow of Ganges Inundates Worshippers.
A despatch from London says: Hundreds of religious celebrants were drowned by a sudden overflow of the Ganges River near Agra, India. Thousands were encamped along the river for a religious festival, when the river rose suddenly, almost as though by a tidal wave.

FATAL ELEVATOR ACCIDENT.

One Killed and Three Injured, Two Fatally.

A despatch from London, Ont., says: As a result of a peculiar and distressing elevator accident at the biscuit factory of D. S. Perrin & Co., at four o'clock Thursday afternoon, one young man was killed and three injured, two fatally. Earl Bartlett, aged 16, who lost his life, was putting in his first day's work at the factory. John R. Wellspring and Sam Govier are in Victoria Hospital with fractured skulls and it is stated cannot live. Alexander Russell, also of this city, sustained a fractured shoulder and knee cap.

Barrett was the elevator operator. He and the others were fooling and someone shoved a truck under the car when it was going down. The elevator was blocked, the cable kept uncoiling and when the truck was knocked out the car fell with all four. The impact snapped the cable and the boys dropped about six storeys.

THIS YEAR'S SURPLUS.

Will Not be Much Below Thirty Million Dollars.

A despatch from Ottawa says: In reference to the reported statement of Hon. Mr. Lemieux in London that Canada's surplus this year would reach thirty millions, it may be pointed out that the figures of revenue and expenditure for the first half of the present fiscal year bear out the prophesy that the surplus this year, though it may not reach a total of thirty millions, will be some millions over last year's record surplus of twenty-two millions. The revenue has been increasing at the rate of nearly one and a quarter millions per month, while the total expenditure for the year will probably show less than half that increase over last year's total.

A SCOTCHMAN STABBED.

Dangerously Wounded by an Italian in Montreal.

A despatch from Montreal says: John MacPherson, a young Scotchman not long out from the old land, lies dangerously wounded at the General Hospital as a result of a stabbing affray on Craig street late Thursday afternoon. MacPherson got into a row with two Italians, Nicola Saller and Joseph Michelo, and one of them stabbed him with a stiletto. A large crowd surrounded the two men, and before the police arrived, the Italians were badly handled by an excited mob. The affair took place on Craig street at the most crowded time of the day and was witnessed by hundreds. This is the first time for many years that an Italian has been arrested for using the knife on anyone but one of his compatriots.

THE PORTUGUESE RISING

Description of Street Fighting, With Which the Revolution Began.

The London Daily Mail, in a special despatch from Lisbon, dated Wednesday, says the first sign of revolt was the presence of rioters parading the streets on Monday night and exciting the populace by versions of the assassination of the Republican member for Lisbon, Dr. Bombarda. Early on Tuesday morning the rioters, evidently by a prearranged plan, fired their signal outside the barracks of the 16th Regiment of Infantry. Then trouble began. The soldiers, after murdering their captain, Celestino Costa, burst into the armory and distributed arms to the people. Then they sallied forth to the 1st Artillery quarters, who joined the revolt. Afterwards the soldiers signalled the news to the warships in the Tagus.

At the same time men in a motor car attacked the arsenal with bombs in an effort to gain entrance, but were repelled. Several guards of the arsenal were killed. A general alarm was given, and troops filled the streets, concentrating in the squares. There was the greatest difficulty in maintaining communication, as the streets were impassable, the Municipal Guards then loyal to the throne, forbidding all traffic. The trains ceased to run, for the lines were cut by the Republicans, who were later most thorough in the measures they took.

I am now writing at dawn on Wednesday. There has been a terrifying cannonade all night long, and it is now increasing in violence. The artillery from Santarém, forty-five miles away, have arrived and joined the Republicans. An attack is being made on the Carmo convent, the stronghold of the Municipal Guards. Shrapnel bullets are falling like hail around the windows, smashing the glass. As I write the Municipal Guards under the windows of the office of The Mundo, a Republican newspaper, have just been shot dead. The ambulances are full of dead, and are constantly passing. The Red Cross is hoisted all over the town, even on the newspaper offices. The streets are deserted, except for the troops, and the bakeries have been raided by the soldiers for bread.

At 8 o'clock on Wednesday morning I was informed that the hitherto loyalist troops had hoisted the white flag and had surrendered to the Republicans. Suddenly the streets were filled with crowds shouting "Viva Republica." The people then began rushing down to the Avenida da Liberdade. The Municipal Guards, who were absolutely heroic in their defence, have also now surrendered. It is now 1 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, and the Republic of Portugal has been proclaimed at the Town Hall amid the enthusiasm of the people.

KING MANUEL AT GIBRALTAR
A despatch from Gibraltar says: King Manuel of Portugal is now under British protection. The Portuguese royal yacht Amélie, having on board the king, the queen mother, the dowager queen and the Duke of Oporto, entered this harbor at eleven o'clock on Thursday evening. Shortly afterwards the king and the queen mother came ashore, and drove to the summer residence of the governor, Sir Frederick Forestier Walker, at Europa Point.

"WOMEN RULE THE WORLD."

"Men are Willing Slaves," Wrote Suicide in Montreal.

A despatch from Montreal says: The body of a man who was identified as John Malone was found in Mount Royal Park on Sunday with an empty bottle that had contained carbolic acid. A note was found in his pocket in which he wished good luck to all his friends and in a pocketbook was written, "Women rule the world, and men are their willing slaves."

A despatch from New Haven, Conn., says: Asserting that the Republican rule in this country is tending rapidly toward the disruption of the Union, Prof. D. Cady Eaton of Yale, in a letter addressed to the Democratic party, declares that "a new secession, not handicapped this time by slavery, may be the only way for the people to regain their liberties and terminate the rule of graft." He further asserts that "the people of the several sovereign States are tired of centralization, Imperialism, 'world power,' colonization, and everything that is opposed to the principles declared by the people at the beginning of the Republic." The letter concludes: "Though the establishment of an empire in this country may not be conceivable, the disruption of the Union into independent republics is conceivable, possible, and to be feared if there be not great changes at Washington."

This Feeding Floor Could Be Built in The Fall

and it would help greatly to preserve the condition of your live stock in the Spring.

Every farmer knows that in the Spring of the year his barnyard is almost bottomless. The live stock mire down into the mud and almost float around—greatly to the detriment of their physical condition.

By building a Concrete feeding floor in the yard, this trouble is done away with.

A Feeding Floor of comparatively small area and built this Fall, would pay for itself next year. Concrete is the only material that can be used in this way at a moderate cost.

Will you ask for your copy of the book which we have prepared for you—"What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete"? It's free—and, take our word for it, you'll find it one of the most interesting pieces of such literature you ever read. And profitable, too—because it will save you money.

FRANK H. PERRY.

Mr. John Dickens showed us on Thursday some fine ripe strawberries, picked off his vines on Wednesday, a rare thing at this time of the year.

Work was commenced on Tuesday on the Dundas street sewer with a small gang of men at the corner of Dundas and East streets. The contractor expects to have a large number of men on the work in a few days.

In the Western Methodist church, on Thursday evening, October 20th Rev. Emsley will give an interesting address on his trip through the west. Refreshments will also be served. The programme will commence at 8 o'clock. Admission 10c.

Peter Fraser, a former resident of North Fredericksburgh, died on Wednesday at his home in Simcoe, at an advanced age. The remains will be brought to Napanee and interment will take place in Riverside cemetery on Saturday. Mrs. W. F. Gerow, Palace road, is a sister of deceased.

Rev. J. P. Glover, who has been stated supply, in Deseronto, for about eighteen months, desires to terminate the engagement and as he is also moderator, pro tem, of the sessions of the Presbyterian church in Napanee, the case will be dealt with at a meeting of presbytery, to be held at the time of the induction of Rev. Prof. Dail.

On Saturday morning death claimed Frank Gifford Williams, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Williams. Deceased was in the prime of young manhood and was a victim of the white plague, consumption. He was aged twenty-four years and came home a couple of months ago in poor health, and had been failing ever since, although confined to his bed but a week. The sorrowing family have the sympathy of the entire town in this third affliction within a few years, a brother and sister having died recently. The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon from the family residence to Riverside cemetery.

On Saturday the Picton Collegiate foot ball teams and ladies basket ball teams paid their annual visit to the Napanee Collegiate Institute. The Juniors played in the forenoon, and were very evenly matched, the score being 1 to 0 in favor of Napanee, won by a penalty kick. In the afternoon the seniors met and victory again rested with Napanee, score 6-0. The Napanee basket ball girls were not so fortunate, as the Picton girls won by a score of eight to four. The return games will be played in Picton on October 24th. A goodly crowd attended the games and keen interest was taken in the result.

THE PEERLESS PENNINSULAR CAST RANGE

And if you think that we say too much about it just ask some one who has one.

Here is one of the many testimonials received this year from one of the delighted users of this range:

Dear Sir,—

I must state the Peerless Penninsular Range I purchased of you some time ago, that it has given entire satisfaction in every respect. My wife is more than pleased with its baking qualities, and it is also an excellent heater, heating the same amount of room that my former stove did with quite a saving of fuel. I have owned several stoves and I find the Peerless has given us the best satisfaction and can honestly recommend the same.

The annual Thank-offering of the Presbyterian W. F. M. S. will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 18th, at the home of Mrs. Wm. Templeton, Thomas street, at 3.30 p. m. Mrs. Smith, of Burnbrae will address the ladies. Good music, a good address, and delicious refreshments. Voluntary offering. All the ladies are urged to attend.

Thos. Sexsmith a former resident of Selby, died on Monday at his home near Oswego, N.Y., aged 83 years. Mr. Sexsmith left Selby about thirty one years ago. The remains were brought to Napanee on Wednesday and interred in the Riverside cemetery. Mr. Sexsmith was a brother-in-law of Messrs. J. T. and A. W. Grange.

Running away from a farm near Odessa, a lad, fifteen years of age, went to Kingston on Sunday, walking most of the distance, and at night was a caller at police headquarters, and was given shelter. The boy was poorly clad, and as he had no place to go, with no friends, and without a cent of money, he was very glad to get in some place where it was warm and comfortable.

Quite a number of firms who are well known to readers of the "Maritime Merchant" had very attractive exhibits at the Dominion Exhibition which closed recently in St. John. One of the first to attract attention on entering the main building was that of T. H. Estabrooks, who had a very artistic booth with polite attendants, to serve Red Rose Tea and Coffee to all comers. Needless to say it was always filled.—Maritime Merchant of Sept. 29th.

Hugh Killorin, son of Mr. James Killorin, Napanee, died on Sunday at Duluth, Minn., after three weeks illness of typhoid fever. Deceased was thirty-three years of age, and leaves besides his parents, two brothers, Messrs. Ambrose and Paul Killorin, and one sister to mourn his early demise. The remains were brought to Napanee and the funeral took place on Thursday morning to St. Patrick's church, and interment in the R. C. cemetery.

Rev. A. Hayes Dead.

Rev. Adelbert Hayes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hayes, Thomas street, passed away quite suddenly at the Medicine Hat hospital on Tuesday. Seventeen years ago deceased left Napanee to enter the ministry at Hannah, North Dakota, and for a number of years occupied various stations in that state. A couple of years ago while stationed at Daycey his health failed and he was advised to cease preaching for some time. Following this advice he took up land at Carlstadt, Alberta, and moved there with his family. During the past few months he had been filling the pulpit of the Methodist church at Strathmore, Alta., and while on his way home from there he was taken suddenly ill and taken to the hospital at Medicine Hat. Besides his parents he leaves a widow, one daughter and two sons at Carlstadt. The funeral took place from Medicine Hat. Messrs. Dorland Hayes, Lansing, Mich.; Ed. Hayes, Napanee; Frank Hayes, Detroit, are brothers, and Mrs. A. F. Shorts, Napanee; and Mrs. A. E. Websdale, Carlstadt, Alberta, are sisters.

ORILLIA TOWN.

Rev. Canon Greene, of Orillia, is one of the most prominent Anglican clergymen in the Province of Ontario. He has lived for many years in the town of Orillia, and is thoroughly conversant with conditions there.

Speaking in Huntsville near the end of 1908, Canon Greene, by request, referred to the enforcement of Local Option in Orillia. The Huntsville Forester quotes him as follows:

Based upon the most careful and judicious enquiry, and upon information gleaned from sources thoroughly trustworthy, he was able to say that Orillia was prospering under Local Option. The effect upon business was declared by the business men themselves to be productive of a greater volume of trade, with a smaller proportion of unpaid accounts. It was shown also that licensed municipalities close at hand did not draw from Orillia merchants trade from within their circle.

The hotel accommodation was better than ever before, meals were better, the houses cleaner, and the travelling public were better satisfied. Hotel men and clerks were more obliging and civil than under license, and so far as the financial return was concerned, some of the largest houses had declared that they were able to make a splendid living from the table alone, without the revenue of a licensed bar.

The police court returns gave ample evidence of the strict observance of the provisions of the act. For the six months prior to May last there were 47 cases of drunks and violations of the Liquor Act before the local magistrate. Since May 1—the Local Option period—there had not been a single case of drunkenness up for adjudication until last week.

It would be easy to add a great many similar testimonies to that of Canon Greene. The following are simply examples of statements which other prominent citizens have written.

Orillia, Ont., Dec. 7th, 1908

From a general standpoint would say that I consider the town has greatly benefited from Local Option.

From a professional standpoint would say that during the time that Local Option has been in force I have not had a case of alcoholism under treatment, which goes to prove that there has been very little excessive drinking.

Signed, W. C. GILCHRIST, M. D.

We believe Local Option, as enforced in Orillia, is a splendid thing for a town of any size.

Hotel accommodation in Orillia is better now than when under license, and we are satisfied that a hotel will pay larger profits without a bar, than a mercantile house.

Property has increased in value in Orillia, and more building operations are going on now than ever before.

Rents have not been lowered, and there are practically no empty houses in town. The almost entire absence of crime in Orillia speaks well for the moral influence of the Act.

THE ORILLIA HARDWARE CO.

We desire to say from a manufacturers' point of view, that we believe Orillia to be in a far better position without liquor licenses, and that the doing away with these licenses has been to the advantage of the town.

Yours truly,

THE TUDHOPE CARRIAGE CO., LTD.

I believe that Local Option in Orillia has not been in any way detrimental to its business, and it has vastly improved its moral tone and sobriety.

I cannot call to mind a single customer from the adjacent country whom we have lost through the effect of Local Option, and I know of many who prefer this town to others as affording less temptation to their sons.

Russia.

Russia did not break into European history until comparatively recent times. Ruric, a Vargian chief, seems to have been the first to establish a government, about 862. Ruric's descendants ruled amid many ups and downs till 1598, at which time the real history of the country may be said to begin. With the solitary exception of the United States of America, the progress of Russia under Peter the Great and Catherine II. is unequalled for rapidity in the history of the world.

SELBY.

The neighbors and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Ira B. Hudgins surprised them last Saturday night by giving a right royal welcome home after their extended trip to the West. At eight o'clock about seventy-five people gathered and after spending the early part of the evening in social conversation and games, refreshments were served. Mr. Lucas then took the chair and in a brief address conveyed to Mr. and Mrs. Hudgins the object of the occasion and the appreciation and respect of the community at large. This was followed by a few words from Mr. Jackson. Mr. Madole then made a short speech and was followed by the pastor, Rev. W. Down. Mr. Hudgins replied in a few well-chosen words in which he showed that he was both surprised and pleased at this token of regard which had been extended to his wife and himself. Miss Adams favoured the crowd with a couple of recitations. The gathering broke up after singing "Blest be the tie that binds" and the benediction was pronounced. Mr. and Mrs. Ben Denison have moved to their residence in Selby.

Quite a number from our vicinity attended the tea meeting at Ebenezer. Mrs. Tait is visiting her father, Mr. Hugh McKnight.

Potato digging is the order of the day. Mr. Fred Sexsmith has purchased a new potato digger and is doing fine work.

Lehigh Valley Coal

is the best Anthracite Coal on the market to-day. Since I have been in the coal business I have handled Scranton and several other kinds of coal, and none can compare with the LEHIGH.

It burns longer, is cleaner, and the sizes are more even.
